Iron False Teeth.
Prince and President.
Too Much Wine.
No Sure State.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

THE GREAT KRUPP concern, makers of big cannon, on which the Kaiser's power used to rest, now manufactures false teeth of steel, enameled, the same steel that once went into fighting machinery.

Can you imagine anything stranger in history than the possibility of the Kaiser wearing a set of false teeth made by the Krupps? Not the same bite in that set as there was in the old cannon.

THE PRINCE OF WALES will lunch at the White House with President Coolidge. That should be a labored conversation. A bushman and an Esquimaux would have fewer points of intellectual contact than President Coolidge and the Prince of Wales.

IT WILL be something like the meeting of the late Joseph Pulitzer and the grandson of a British duke who traveled from London to visit Pulitzer on the Mediterranean to offer himself as a "social companion." The duke's grandson made only one remark in the conversation which was to display his entertaining qualities. Said he, "Woodcock very bad," meaning that he had had poor shooting. Pulitzer, who didn't know anything about woodcock, said nothing except, "Please send him home," to his executive secretary.

ITALY DOESN'T know what to do with her wine crop this year. She has not enough casks to hold it. Citizens can walk into a wine cellar and "drink as much as desired" for a few cents.

Good prohibitionists will say, "What terrible drunkenness there will be in Italy." But they don't know the Italian people. They don't get drunk, whether the wine is cheap or dear.

ON ONE OCCASION when the wine crop was excessive, the Italians mixed it with oats and fed it to horses to give them strength. They believe that the iron, tannin and acid in the wine build health; no attaching so much importance to the alcohol.

SEVERAL HUNDRED years ago the Asiatics gave strong alcoholic drink, made of palm juice, to the fighting elephants to make them desperate and indifferent to pain.

Here occasionally they give a little whiskey to a jumping horse before he "goes over the sticks" to give him courage.

But Italians go along on their natural nerve, which is ample.

REPUBLICANS ADMIT that States of which they are "absolutely sure" are not enough to guarantee a majority in the electoral college.

In this election, except one or two Northern States and the usual loyal Southern Democracy, there are no States that ANYBODY is sure to carry. (Except Wisconsin and three others safe for La Follette.)

The nearer you get to election the more it looks like no election in the electoral college, and a decision from the House, or Senate.

SOCIALISTS SAY that union labor, supporting La Follette, has been tricked into starting a movement that will develop into a Socialistic Labor party like the one ruling in Great Britain.

That's a poor guess. In a hundred years or so, when the different kinds of Americans of different nationalities and religions stop hating each other, you might have a successful labor party. Perhaps by that time the people will be sufficiently educated not to need one.

LIFESAVER ROONEY, through a heavy surf, saved four lives and brought in one already drowned. To save two of the drowning men he had to first knock them senseless.

Some voters among the "lower class," and some powerful men among the "upper class," remind you of the two that had to be knocked unconscious. Until something happens that does knock them unconscious, some voters have a feeble idea of what their welfare demands.

ADMITS OWNING GUN

Dr. Thiery Identifies Weapon With Which Police Allege Noble Was Slain

The admission of Dr. Raymond D. Thiery that he owned the rifle with which, the police say, David M. Noble was slain.

A motive for the murder in Dr. Thiery's fear that Noble would marry again and make his new wife the beneficiary of his insurance policies.

Failure of the Massachusetts General Hospital physicians to find any trace of the rupture which Thiery said he received in the struggle with the intruder in home on the nght of the murder of Noble.

These were the outstanding developments today in the investigation of the cold-blooded killing of David Noble at the Thiery home, No. 34 Central street, last Friday night.

The motive for the crime was constructed by the police before Dr. Thiery was placed under arrest at midnight last night, on a first degree murder charge while a patient at Massachusetts General Hospital.

FOUND IN PANTRY.

The arrest followed the finding of the carbine concealed between the floor and the lower drawer in the kitchen pantry of the Thiery home. The rifle which is alleged to bear evidence of recent discharge, was brought by the police to the cot of Dr. Thiery and he admitted that it was his.

Captain Charles Van Amburgh, expert, who aided in the search, gun expert, who aided in the search, which killed Noble was fired from this weapon.

Dr. Thiery is suffering from wounds which the police claim were self-inflicted in an attempt to dodge suspicion and to give weight to a simulated attack by burglars. He is also convalescing from an operation for rupture performed at his request at the hospital early Sunday. He insisted that he received this injury in a hand-to-hand struggle with a burglar which ended by both pitching headlong down the cellar stairs.

When taken to the Somerville Hospital, Dr. Thiery complained of a severe head injury and multiple cuts on the left arm. An X-ray showed no injury to the head. A series of seven or eight parallel cuts on the left arm are said to have been made by a small pocket-knife found in the Thiery home. This knife, with the revolvers and rifle, are exhibits in the

Noble was murdered; Dr. Raymond Donald Thiery (top right), under arrest as slayer of Noble, and Robert M. KLAN MYTHS AND FABLES EXPLODED

It takes a great deal of chicane and deceit to keep an organization like the Ku Klux Klan alive. Some of the Klan myths, invented by the leaders to frighten the rank and file, are described today in the seventh instalment in "The Confessions of a New England Klansman."

EVERY armory in Massachusetts is in charge of a Catholic custodian!

A ridiculous statement, is it not? Of course, it is not true. But ridiculous as it is, it is part of the propaganda bein used in organizing the Ku Klux Klan in the Bay State.

Time and time again I have heard the statement made and elaborated upon. Some konklave orators say that some of the armories have Catholic janitors, others are indirectly in charge of State officials who belong to the Catholic church. Some day, when the signal for the great Catholic rising is given, these armories are to be seized and turned over to "the Papists."

This is a fair sample of the kind

Joseph Mark of Milford street, South End, before Judge Cohen in the Municipal Criminal Court on larceny complaint, said he worked one day for a Federal street construction company and was paid with a check for $5.60. The period between the dollars and cents was indistinct. When he presented the check at a Hanover street bank, the cashier paid him $560.

When he handed back the difference between the money he received and $5.60, the case was filed.

GARMENT STRIKERS IN COURT

23 Arrested Are Arraigned; Some Manufacturers Begin to Hold Conferences

Picketing was abandoned today by the striking garment workers, largely as a result of the activity of the police.

Twenty-three strikers were arrested for "obstructing free foot passage" before the picketing campaign was given up.

Anthony Iorio, who was taken into custody outside the shop of M. S. Koneazian on Shawmut avenue, in the South End, was the last striker arrested.

For a few minutes the situation outside the shop was threatening, as strike sympathizers seemed about to try to rush the police, but if they had any such idea they abandoned it.

INJURED IN AUTO ON BRIDGE

Comrades March in Rain As Thousands Cheer Along the Route

Four G. A. R. veterans were injured today, when an automobile in which they were riding to Boston to participate in the big parade, crashed into a post on Chelsea bridge.

The driver of the machine tried to avoid hitting a woman and the car skidded. The woman, it is reported, was also injured.

The hurt veterans were taken to the Chelsea Naval Hospital.

In a drizzling rain, that made the footing extremely bad, 10,000 aged members of the Grand Army of the Republic marched and rode through the streets of Boston today.

At a slow pace of ninety steps a minute, accompanied by martial music of the days of '61, the veterans trudged sturdily through the downpour, applauded to the echo by thousands of umbrella-protected spectators.

Despite the inclement weather a large crowd turned out, as it is undoubtedly the last parade of the men who saved the Union that Boston will ever see.

Long before the start thousands of friends and relatives of the veterans began to gather in the huge grandstand erected on Tremont street.

Through the thoughtfulness of Fire Commissioner Glynn, 400 firemen were on hand to assist the aged women to the high seats in the case. The knife is said to be one formerly used by Dr. Thiery.

The larger blade, the police say, appears to have been recently cleaned and sharpened, but the two smaller blades are rusty. The knife has a brown bone handle and brass ends.

UNDER POLICE GUARD.

The police claim that Dr. Thiery cut his own arm with this knife in his effort to convince the authorities that he fought with a burglar.

The accused slayer is under police guard in a private room at the hospital. It will be some days before he is able to walk. He will be under surveillance constantly by relays of police guards.

Patrolman Charles E. Lacey of the Somerville police department started the vigil at midnight. The watch will be continued until the alleged slayer is strong enough to be transferred to the East Cambridge jail.

Indications today were that an insanity plea may be made in behalf of the accused physician, who is 28 years of age.

Dr. Thiery admitted to State detectives and Somerville police in an interview late Monday afternoon that he owned a service rifle, but that he had recently thrown it into the rubbish barrel. This admission caused the hunt for a revolver to shift to a hunt for a rifle, after Medical Examiners George Burgess Magrath and Thomas Durrell had reported that the wound in Noble's head indicated greater destructiveness than was consistent even with a heavy calibre revolver.

ADMITS RIFLE IS HIS.

The Thiery home, an imposing single dwelling in the fashionable Spring Hill section of Somerville, was searched from cellar to roof by State Detectives John Stokes and Joseph Ferrari and Lieutenant Detectives Thomas Damery and Michael Kennedy of the Somerville police.

Medical Examiners Magrath and Durrell and Captain Van Amburgh, the gun expert, were also present. Dr. Thiery also admitted ownership of a .25 calibre revolver, which was found in a bureau drawer in bedroom formerly occupied by him.

The three revolvers previously taken from the Thiery home by the police, one of .32 calibre and two of .22 calibre, were the property of William O. Thiery, father of the accused.

ONE SHELL EMPTY.

The officers searched the cellar and worked up into the kitchen. The three drawers in the kitchen pantry were removed and between the lower one and the floor were found the rifle and a screw driver. The rifle contained one empty shell and four full shells.

Dr. Thiery told the officers that he got the rifle abroad while serving as an ensign in the navy. He first told them that the rifle which he had as a war throphy was a United States service rifle which he had thrown away. The weapon found in the pantry was the old fashioned Austrian type commonly used by mountaineers. It is an eight-millimetre Mannlicher carbine with a velocity of 2,400 feet per second.

BLEW OFF TOP OF SKULL.

The autopsy showed that this powerful weapon was discharged within four feet of Noble as he was about to enter the inner door from the vestibule, before he had time to put his latch keys into his pocket. The bullet shattered the bridge of the nose, making a wound as wide as a thumb, passed through the head, leaving a gaping wound more than an inch in circumference.

The impact shattered the base of the skull and tore away the roof of the head. Grains of powder imbedded in the victim's face, some of which penetrated to the skull bone, indicated to the pathological experts that a high-powered rifle used at close range and not a revolver caused Noble's death. These medical discoveries were what caused the officers to interrogate Dr. Thiery relative to ownership of a service rifle.

The Austrian carbine resembles somewhat a Springfield rifle used by the United States army, but has a shorter barrel. The bullets are shorter nosed and a trifle thicker than the American ammunition as the barrel is somewhat wider.

STATEMENTS IN CONFLICT.

Coincident with the information concerning the service rifle in the Thiery home came information positively placing Dr. Thiery in the kitchen of the house when the shot was fired, on his own admission, the police say. Earlier versions by him were to the effect that he was awakened by a sound, hurried downstairs and was attacked in the dark by a burglar whom he fought all the way into the cellar.

Conflicting statements made by Dr. Thiery and some made by his father, who corroborated him concerning the visit of the burglars, first caused the police to eliminate the burglar theory and to fashion suspicion on a member of the household.

Witnesses told how David Noble, real estate and insurance broker and a widower of four months had recently changed his will. His original will had made his wife, Louise Thiery Noble, graduate of Wellesley College, class of '09, his beneficiary. Noble's chief property were two insurance policies, one for $10,000 left to the Noble estate by his father who for years did business under the firm of Noble & Redmond, real estate brokers in Boston. The other insurance policy for $7,000 Noble had taken out in his own name shortly before his wife's death.

WILL ANGERS RELATIVES.

Under his amended will Noble made his four-year-old daughter, Eunice, the sole beneficiary and appointed Dr. Thiery, his brother-in-law, 12 years his junior, trustee until his daughter became of age.

According to information supplied by intimates of both parties rumors reached the Thiery household that Noble, who was thirty-eight years of age, and whose wife died the first of last April, was courting another woman.

This is reported to have angered his parents-in-law and to have particularly incensed Dr. Thiery, trustee under his will.

The police are reported to have constructed a case on the hypothesis that Dr. Thiery, fearing an early marriage by Noble and a transfer of his insurance policies to his bride, quarrelled with Noble, finally becoming so enraged that he ambushed him in the hallway of their mutual home at 10:10 p. m. on August 8.

As a result of late developments the stories told by Dr. Thiery and his father, a retired watch salesman, concerning the alleged invasion of burglars last Friday night, have been discarded.

Developments to Date in Somerville Tragedy

Here is a synopsis of the facts in the murder of David M. Noble, Somerville real estate man, at his home, No. 34 Central street, leading up to the arrest of Dr. Raymond Donald Thiery, Noble's brother-in-law:

David M. Noble, real estate operator, was shot dead Friday night about 10:15 o'clock in the house at No. 34 Central street, Somerville, in which he lived with his in-laws, the Thierys.

Dr. Raymond D. Thiery, his brother-in-law, was found in the cellar, bleeding from several superficial knife wounds. He said he had been awakened by the sound of a shot and found his brother-in-law dead and a burglar ransacking the house.

Thiery was taken first to Somerville Hospital and then to Massachusetts General. Examination showed he was not injured as seriously as he asserted. He had no head injuries at all. The wounds on his left arm were inflicted with a pen-knife, physicians said, and added that the slashes might have been inflicted with a knife found in the Thiery home.

Sunday and Monday the police continued to give some credence to the burglar theory. Late Monday that theory was abandoned, when a witness was found who had been told by Noble that his life was in danger from a relative. The name of this relative was furnished by the witness, who made his revelations to the Boston American.

Coincident with this development, Miss Mary Welch testified that nobody ran out the front door of the Noble-Thiery home immediately after the shooting. Other witnesses said nobody ran out the back way. Detectives said nobody left the house at all. They admit other discrepancies in Thiery's story.

Thiery was subjected to a gruelling cross-examination at Massachusetts General Hospital.

He admitted to the police ownership of the rifle which they had found in a pantry at the Thiery home.

Following this admission the police placed the doctor under arrest. He is now being guarded by Somerville patrolmen.

The police believe they have established a motive in Dr. Thiery's dread that his brother-in-law would marry again and make a new will, in which case Thiery would lose the trusteeship of Noble's property, which was to be his until Noble's daughter came of age.

vering which resulted in the picketing and capture of the C-1998.

The latter is a speed boat and has been giving the customs men trouble for weeks. It is alleged she has escaped from the Dreamer on two previous occasions by reason of her superior speed.

Last night Captain Albert G. Wyman of the Coast Guard cutter picked up the trail of the speed boat departing from a big schooner well out on Rum Row.

By superior seamanship he managed to overcome the handicap of speed and to force the rum runner in toward the rocks.

Once close enough, he opened fire with the bow gun, meaning to put the speed boat's engine out of commission.

In the fog the skipper of the C-1998 became confused and lost his sense of direction. When the bullets began to send up spray astern he hoisted the white flag and was brought up.

BROOKLINE RESIDENTS SPOIL GARAGE PLANS

Strong opposition was recorded by Brookline residents at a public hearing before the selectmen on petitions for licenses to store gasoline in public and private garages which the petitioners proposed to erect in the town.

MYSTERY MAN'S STORY LED TO ARREST

Robert M. MacDonnell, for twenty-four hours the mystery witness in the Noble murder investigation, was discovered by the Boston American, which turned his testimony over to the police.

It was largely due to his story that Dr. Raymond D. Thiery was arrested, charged with the shooting.

Mr. MacDonnell lives at No. 86 Roseclair street, Dorchester, and worked for the murdered man for some time.

It was the story he told to Assistant District-Attorney Warren L. Bishop that first directed attention of the authorities to Dr. Raymond D. Thiery as the possible slayer.

"Noble was in fear of his life," the "mystery" witness told the assistant district-attorney.

"If I'm ever shot you will know who shot me," Noble told MacDonnell on another occasion.

He frequently told of quarrels with his brother-in-law, the doctor, and for weeks he seemed to have a premonition that death was hovering near him.

MacDonnell will likely be one of the State's witnesses in the prosecution of Dr. Thiery as the slayer.

BONES OF PREHISTORIC PIG FOUND IN OREGON

Portland, Ore., Aug. 12.—The skull, a tooth and several bones of an elotherium, a large, pig-like creature, which roamed the tropical forest of what is now known as John Day Valley in Eastern Oregon, were discovered by a party of geologists from the University of California. The skull of the elotherium is about the size of that of a modern horse. The geologists also found several bones of the three-toed horse and numerous bones of the rhinoceros, which once lived in Eastern Oregon.

MOTHER-IN-LAW MUCH UPSET OVER NOBLE

The American learned today that Dr. Thiery's mother was so disturbed by reports that her son-in-law had a new sweetheart that she wrote a letter to Miss Louise Hursh, a Wellesley classmate of her daughter in New York, complaining of the alleged courtship by David of some unknown girl.

Miss Hursh sent a letter in reply to Mrs. Thiery, senior, explaining that David Noble was still a young man, but that there was nothing to worry about and that his habits were most exemplary. It is known that David Noble read this letter which Miss Hursh mailed to his mother-in-law.

Mrs. Curtis W. Emery

David M. Noble

These two letters have become important exhibits in the case. It was also learned by the Boston American today that in 1922, a married woman who lives in Allston, a cousin of Noble's late wife, made attempts to entice Noble to accompany her on a yacht and to get him into a compromising position according to his stories to confidantes at the time.

WOMAN INCENSED.

Failing in this the woman was so incensed that she was reported by Noble to have written slanderous letters about his imaginary conduct with her to the Thiery household. The police are investigating this new phase of the domestic snarl which led to the shooting. They are working on the theory that the cousin herself estranged from the Thierys for some time, tried to compromise the husband of Louise Thiery for the sole purpose of avenging herself by injuring the feelings and pride of the Thiery family.

This discovery, made today by the Boston American, dovetails with the exclusive testimony furnished to this newspaper Monday, by Robert M. MacDonnell, an employe of the New Haven Railroad who lives at No. 86 Roseclair street, Dorchester.

MacDonnell conferred with Assistant District Attorney Warren L. Bishop, State Detectives Stokes and Ferrari and Lieutenants Damery and Kennedy of Somerville at the East Cambridge Court and told his story.

NOBLE FEARED DEATH.

He was the mystery witness in the case for twenty-four hours. Not knowing anything about the married cousin's affair with David Noble and the Thiery family, MacDonnell told of threats which he claimed Noble said his brother-in-law had made to shoot him because of his alleged affairs with women.

In his conference at the district attorney's office MacDonnell said:

"I was employed by Noble at his Allston office on Commonwealth avenue from February to May, 1922. I collected rents and let apartments for him. He told me he was married and asked me if I was married. He told me that his brother-in-law had quarrelled with him because of his alleged attentions to other women.

"'He thinks I am afraid of him I guess, because I don't argue back with him,' said Noble to me. 'He threatened to kill me.' Noble further stated that if I ever read in the morning papers that he had been killed I would know who did it. He never named his brother-in-law nor did I ever see his brother-in-law.

RECALLS CONVERSATION.

"He simply used the term brother-in-law and I did not know whether he had one or more than one. He mentioned five or six times his brother-in-law threatened to shoot him or kill him. This was all in 1922. At first I did not think much about it but although Noble seemed to pass it off lightly I noticed that several times he was suffering from suppressed agitation as if inwardly frightened.

Dr. Thiery Kept Small Arsenal At Home

THE following assortment of weapons has been found to date in the home of Dr. Raymond D. Thiery, who is charged with the murder of David M. Noble, his brother-in-law:

Two revolvers of 22-caliber, found in the room of William O. Thiery, father of the accused man.

One revolver of 32-caliber, also found among the elder Thiery's possessions.

One automatic pistol of 25-caliber, found in a bureau drawer in a bedroom formerly occupied by Dr. Thiery.

One Austrian army rifle, property of Dr. Thiery, found hidden under boarding in the pantry of the Thiery home. This, the police allege, was the death weapon.

NOBLE GIRL IS ORPHANED BY MURDER

An orphan girl going on four years of age is the pathetic figure in the slaying of David M. Noble, Somerville real estate operator.

She is pretty little Eunice Noble, daughter of the man who was shot down, as the State alleges, by his brother-in-law, Dr. Thiery.

The child is in Maine and does not know as yet that her "daddy" isn't coming to Maine to return with her to Boston. The child has not been told of the tragedy. She has been told that her father is ill, but within a few days it will be necessary to break the sad news to her.

A little more than four months ago the child's mother, Mrs. Louise Thiery Noble, died of lobar pneumonia. Although of tender years the child realized that her mother was gone from her forever, and she still grieves for her "mama." Since the tragic death of her father, no one can be found with sufficient courage to tell the child she is now completely orphaned.

ATTENDED BY THIERY.

The child was with her grandmother, Mrs. Maria Thiery, when the shooting at the Thiery home occurred. Mrs. Thiery has returned to her home, but has left the child behind.

According to Mrs. Thiery, misfortune was constantly at the heels of her son-in-law until the culmination came in the slaying.

Not long before his own death, both his parents died. Their deaths were followed by that of his brother. Then, on April 1, his wife succumbed to pneumonia.

"Noble and my daughter were an ideally mated couple," declared the grief-stricken grandmother. "Friends, I believed, were almost envious of their happiness. For nearly ten years their married life was one of joy."

Dr. Thiery attended his sister, Noble's wife, up until a week previous to her death. Then Dr. Louis Guy Mead, No. 122 Marlboro street, was called in.

On the woman's death certificate left lobar pneumonia was given as the cause of death. Acute pericarditis was given as a contributing cause.

Mrs. Noble's personal property, valued at about $300, was left to her husband and little daughter. It is said Noble shortly afterward made Dr. Thiery his beneficiary.

"My daughter was married to Noble after a short courtship," said the dead woman's mother. "She was employed as a librarian at the time. Noble had just started in the real estate business here. After their wedding he gave up his home in Dorchester and came to live with my husband and me.

"There has been no friction whatever between any members of our family. Noble lived here with his wife because he chose to make his home with us. As I said, for nearly ten years they were ideally happy.

DUST IS DENIAL OF BURGLAR, SAY POLICE

Somerville police officials investigating the Noble murder declare the theory that the real estate man was killed by burglars who entered the Thiery home at No. 34 Central street, Somerville, will not hold as the dust on the window sills had been undisturbed for months.

Discovery was contained in the testimony of Roland Longbottom of No. 132 Summer street and his fiancee, Miss Mary Welch of No. 18 Cleveland street, both of Somerville.

They told the police that they were passing the Thiery home on their way down Central avenue at exactly 10:10 when they heard a shot in the house. Longbottom looked at his watch and fixed the time and he and Miss Welch concluded that it was probably the suicide of the husband of the young woman who died there recently.

SAW LIGHT BURNING.

Both recalled very distinctly that there was a dim light in the hallway and a bright light in the cellar when the shot rang out. A light in the cellar was held by the police to refute the story of Dr. Thiery that he pitched headlong in the dark into the cellar locked with a burglar whose features he could not see.

And these are only a few of the conflicting features in the stories told by Dr. Thiery, according to the police.

It was also learned today that Richard Goode of Somerville, a close friend of the Thiery family, visited the Thiery home at 9:30 o'clock on Friday night for a mirror which the elder Thiery gave him for his father. Goode's father and Dr. Thiery's father are old friends. Dr. Thiery answered the bell when young Goode called for the mirror and Goode was surprised to find the doctor in his pajamas at that early hour.

LEFT FRIEND'S HOUSE.

Pursuing their hypothesis of the tragedy police believe that Dr. Thiery had undressed early and was waiting to slay Noble and had begun to stage the burglar alibi by donning his night attire early.

Noble left the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hursh at No. 77 Avon street, one block from his home at 10:05 Friday night. He chummed with Mr. and Mrs. Hursh, went with them on automobile trips week-ends and evenings and usually lunched and had dinner there since the death of his wife. He confided in them concerning his domestic and business affairs.

He and Mr. Hursh did considerable insurance business jointly and were together most of the time. Mr. Hursh said:

"David was like a brother to me. We had much business in common. He craved the society of young people. After the death of his wife he seemed lonely at his home with the elderly Thiery couple. He seemed to think a great deal of them and worshipped his wife Louise and his little daughter Eunice.

A RADIO FAN.

"I imagine that memories at the Thiery home, where he and his wife lived, saddened him after the death of Louise. He would spend evenings with us. He found much solace in the radio. One of the last things he said on leaving Friday night was that he was going home and try to get 'Chi,' meaning Chicago, on the radio.

"He had succeeded in getting Chicago for the first time the night before as a result of recent improvements on his two-tube set and he remarked to my wife and I that he would listen in while lying in bed and expected that he would fall asleep with the ear-phones on.

"Just before he left that night he and I discussed his insurance policies and he promised to bring them over next day to examine them. He told us that he changed his will after the death of his wife and made his little daughter, Eunice, sole beneficiary, naming Dr. Thiery as trustee until she became of age.

MET REVERSES.

"When his father, who was in the real estate business, died, he left an insurance policy of $10,000 to the estate. At that time David was living in Dorchester. David lost his father and then his mother and then his brother, William, in a few years

B. U. GIRL TELLS HOW SHE WENT TO GREECE AND BACK ON NICKEL

PLENTY OF NERVE MADE UP FOR LACK OF MONEY

Petite, twenty-year-old Anna May Gerry is back home in Jamaica Plain after demonstrating that the average American girl can make her own way in the world.

On a wager, the girl boarded the Grecian liner King Alexander in Boston harbor with just five cents in her pocket. She "stowed away" in a first-class cabin, made the trip to Greece, and has just returned home with her five-cent piece still intact.

It happened this way:

Anna May is a student at the Boston Conservatory of Music and at Boston University. When she is not studying, she goes to parties and dances and things in society. One night late in June she was at a dinner party. The conversation turned to the American girl and what she can do.

RESULT OF WAGER.

"There is no limit to what she can do, if she has courage," declared pretty Anna May, wagging her dark head with conviction.

"Well, I'll bet she couldn't get away with a trip to Europe without tickets and passports," said a young man.

"She certainly can," answered Anna May. "I'll prove she can be a first class stowaway and have a lot of fun."

The girl glanced over the sailing charts in a newspaper. The next morning she packed a bag, put on her smartest traveling suit, and walked nonchalently up the gang plank of the fashionable King Alexander. She looked like a million dollars.

SCOLDS STEWARD.

Anna May sauntered around on the decks and picked out a desirable stateroom, establishing herself in it. A steward approached and asked for her ticket. Anna May gave him one withering look, stamped her little foot, and scolded him for annoying her.

"Another of those temperamental Americans," said the steward to himself, withdrawing in haste.

Thirty-six hours later, the purser discovered he had one too many passengers for his tickets. By a process of elimination he settled on Anna May as the superfluous rider. He asked her about it. Again she became indignant and reproached him with tears. He left her in peace.

But the captain looked into the case. Anna May simply had to confess her lack of a ticket. The captain liked her sporting spirit. He was all politeness and Anna May finished her ride in her first-class state-room unmolested.

MADE FRIENDS.

Meanwhile, the girl had made friends with the passengers. She could sing—and she did every evening and in between times. The passengers liked her.

Then the King Alexander docked at Patras, Greece, for a ten days' stay. Anna May presented a problem. She couldn't enter the country without a passport and the American Consul refused to be bothered. There was nothing to do with her but let her live on the ship and come back to America on its return.

"But I wasn't lonesome," said the stowaway. "Heavens, no. The passengers saw to that. I didn't spend a single night on board. Athens was entirely too interesting for that. Those were ten wonderful days."

Coming back, the little American girl occupied a second-class stateroom with all the privileges of the boat.

INVENTOR-POET HANGED FOR MURDER

London, Aug. 12 (I.N.S.)—Screaming and kicking hysterically, Jean Vaquier, a French inventor, was carried to the gallows today and hanged for the murder of Alfred Jones, an innkeeper, who was poisoned.

During his last days in his cell, the Frenchman wrote verses extolling the beauty of English women.

During the murder trial, Mrs. Jones, widow of the victim, admitted she had been intimate with Vaquier. They became enamored of one another and, it was alleged by the State that the Frenchman decided to put Jones out of the way.

While awaiting death, Vanquier received a letter from his divorced wife, saying:

"I am not sorry for you. It is only justice. You divorced me and besmirched my name."

Of the twenty-two strikers in Municipal Court today, twenty-one were arrested by Sergeants McDonald and Hanrahan of the East Dedham street police station. They warned the pickets to keep moving, but it is alleged the men walked up and down outside a clothing factory and endeavored to induce workers to quit their jobs and join the ranks of the strikers.

MAN LEAPS TO DEATH FROM BEACH BOAT

Had Previously Tried to Plunge Into Harbor at Pemberton

Throngs returning from Nantasket on the boat "Old Colony" were thrown into excitement when a man, believed to be a Charlestown longshoreman, committed suicide by jumping overboard.

A short time before the man had tried to end his life on the dock at Pemberton, but spectators frustrated the attempt.

Crowds waiting on the pier at Pemberton noticed the man acting queerly. When he attempted to leap from the pier, two men seized and held him. He was turned over to the purser. Talking incoherently, he was put in a chair amidships, on the outside deck.

Opposite Long Island the purser's attention was required elsewhere. The man sprang to the rail. Two men seized him, but the stranger shook them off and jumped overboard.

A short time before he ended his life he told members of the ship's crew he was a longshoreman and lived in Charlestown.

The man is described as five feet eight inches tall, weighs 150 pounds and between thirty-five and forty years of age. He wore a [illegible] suit and straw hat and had a short clipped moustache.

Immediately after the suicide there was some criticism of the ship's officers for not putting a boat over the side in an attempt to save the victim. The management of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company issued the following statement today:

"To have put a boat over from the Old Colony at the time and in the circumstances would have imperiled the lives of hundreds of persons, not only on that steamer, but on the Mary Chilton, which was awaiting in the [illegible]."

"She was proceeding through the Narrows in the opposite direction. Captain [illegible] of the Old Colony was at the wheel. The man was on the forepeak. The man jumped from forward of the [illegible]. [illegible] he was taken down by the wheel and drowned instantly."

"There was a swift tide running. In view of the nearness of the Mary Chilton, to stop would have been dangerous. In fact, it would have been criminal."

Fishing License Gave Him Right to Drive, Autoist Tells Police

Worcester, Aug. 12.—Harry E. Twitchell, twenty-eight years old, of Maynard, tried to convince Sergeant John Sexton and Patrolman Thomas Wynn that his fishing license was authority enough to allow him to drive an automobile, when he was hailed in Beacon street, according to their testimony in District Court, where Twitchell was arraigned charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

A bottle of fluid, which smelled suspiciously like whiskey, went with the fishing bait, he said. Twitchell was fined $100 and appealed.

50,000 POSTERS TO ANNOUNCE N. E. WEEK

Pamphlets Also Will Be Issued for Great Industrial Boom

That it pays to advertise is the opinion of the general committee of business men planning New England Week (September 15 to 20).

With this thought in mind the committee has arranged to display 50,000 posters in railroad stations, stores and on billboards. None but the blind will pass through New England in another week without seeing that business in this section of the country is being boosted.

In addition to the posters, a pamphlet, fully explaining the New England Week movement, will be distributed. It will tell how business concerns and individuals can assist in making the movement a success. Five thousand cards are to be placed in street cars for the purpose of advertising THE week.

On all printed matter sent out by the committee the New England Week official slogan is to be used. This slogan is "To Know New England Products Is to Want New England Products."

Society Folk Much Interested in Marblehead Street Fair

By BETTY ALDEN

ONE of the most picturesque spots in New England is Marblehead.

With its wonderful old homes, its narrow, crooked streets and the spell of bygone days hanging over all, this old seaport has innumerable fascinations.

Marblehead fairly abounds with rare treasures. Its antiques are not only of Colonial or way-back English days, but many have been brought there from far-off China or India by some doughty old sea captain of another generation.

Just the setting for a street fair—so bethought themselves a band of philanthropic matrons, and so we have the street fair being held at Marblehead today.

In connection with the fete, a number of the town's most interesting old mansions and houses will be opened today for a small admission fee. Among them is the Parker H. Kemble place, where tea will be served, Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot to preside over the teacups, and the dainty minuet of another day will be revived for the afternoon by a group of young children.

Visitors, too, may enjoy the beauties of Mrs. Warren Thorndike's home, or the "Lookout," the Summer home of the artist, Orlando Rouland, and Mrs. Rouland. The Richard Sprigings' house and Gray Inn will delight others with their priceless relics of another day.

The fair itself, to be held on the lawns of Abbot Hall, has plenty of attractions. Not the least of these are the Marblehead toys and pottery, as well as exquisite fancywork. Besides the usual booths for cake, candy, fruits and vegetables, there will be a Punch and Judy show and pony rides for the children.

Supper will be served from 5:30 until 7, with dancing to follow in Abbot Hall.

(Photo by Bachrach)

The former Josephine de Gersdorff, who is spending the Summer with Mr. Bradlee at Marblehead. Is of the smart group sponsoring the fancy dress ball to be staged August 30 in the stables at "Swiftmoor," Pride's Crossing.

THE Marblehead Female Humane Society—the name itself signifies the antiquity of its origin—is staging today's fete, in order that the Old Ladies' Home may be opened there this Winter under the direction of the society.

Among the prominent folk interested in the street fair are Mesdames Francis B. Crowninshield, B. Devereux Barker, Parker H. Kemble, Henry A. Morss, William Sargent and Warren Thorndike.

OFFERING further excitement along the Shore today are the widely-heralded Jitney Players, who seem to be visiting every fashionable colony of New England this season.

This afternoon they give their first Shore performance at "Rockmarge," Mrs. William H. Moore's estate at Pride's Crossing. In the evening they give another performance at "Rockmarge," and tomorrow there will be two presentations at "Avalon," the Keith Merrill place at Pride's.

The Jitney Players are quite unique. They travel about in two trucks, one carrying baggage and all the "properties," and the other becoming the stage when the show is given. This band of roving Thespians, headed by Bushnell Cheney and sponsored by Samuel Merwin, hire no halls and gives all its performances out of doors.

The list of patronesses for the "Jitney" performances is replete with the names of distinguished folk summering along the Shore and far too long to be printed in these columns.

By BERT FORD.

Motorists who jeopardize the lives of others in order to save a few minutes of their own time by overspeeding, are scored by Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson of Boston in an official indorsement of the I PLAY SAFE CLUB.

Comm'r Wilson

Commissioner Wilson deals with the motor vehicle accident problem from the viewpoint of the pedestrian in order to emphasize close-range observations as head of one of the most efficient police departments in the country. He lauds the Boston American's educational campaign to reduce automobile accidents. His indorsement follows:

City of Boton.
Police Department.
Office of the Commissioner.
Aug. 5, 1924.

Editor Boston American:

"Dear sir—Any agency which brings to the attention of motorists and pedestrians the absolute necessity of using extreme caution when traveling along our streets and highways, is to be fostered and endorsed. I, therefore, am glad to give my sanction to the campaign launched by your paper in the form of the "I PLAY SAFE CLUB."

"USE MORE CARE."

"Many accidents can be prevented by people using more care than they now do. The motorist whose time seems to be so valuable to him that he must speed over the highways at an excessive rate to reach his destination at the expense of all else must be given to understand, in a decisive way, that the streets and highways belong to the people and that the few minutes he is endeavoring to save of his time often results in the loss of life or serious and permanent injury to some of his fellowmen.

"The children also must be taught that the streets are not now a safe place to play in and that riding on tail-boards of large trucks is a dangerous pastime. We often see youngsters huddled together on the tail-boards of large trucks, and, when they reach their points of destination, jump off in the roadway which is filled with swiftly moving motor vehicles, thus endangering their lives.

"If all motorists would take the lesson to heart which experience has taught, that danger to life and limb lurks in our public thoroughfares and if motorists and pedestrians alike would use more caution and care, then accidents would be materially lessened, and the sorrows and heartaches now filling many homes and sufferings of the unfortunate victims caused by these accidents, would accordingly decrease.

"I trust that all those persons joining your Club will remember their pledges, not merely on the day on which they sign them, but each succeeding day as they venture on the roads, for then and only then can effective work and good results obtain, and, if all will endeavor to obey the rules and regulations laid down for motorists, and pedestrians, accidents will be few.

"Wishing you every success in your undertaking for a "PLAY SAFE CAMPAIGN," I am,

Yours respectfully,
HERBERT A. WILSON,
Police Commissioner.

CHEERING HOSTS THRONG THE LINE OF G. A. R. VETERANS' PARADE

GOVERNOR, MAYOR AND GEN. PERSHING REVIEW IT

stand. Otherwise many accidents might have occurred.

Half an hour before the parade started the grandstand was covered with a forest of umbrellas, but few complaints were heard.

CHEER AFTER CHEER.

As the tottering line of blue swung slowly by the grandstand, those too feeble to walk being carried in automobiles, cheer after cheer burst from the throats of the bystanders.

The parade was reviewed from the stand on Tremont street by Governor Cox, Mayor Curley, General John J. Pershing and Commander-in-Chief Saltzgaber and their staffs.

The Aleppo Temple band had been assigned a prominent place and played at intervals.

PROTECTION FOR VETS.

Every precaution had been taken for the protection of the veterans on the line of march. In addition to ambulances, hospital tents had been established at Tremont and Boylston streets, at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul's, at the Old South Meeting House, corner of Milk and Washington streets and at Adams square, the end of the route.

Drs. John Dixwell and Francis X. Mahoney were in active charge of the relief work.

One feature of the parade was the fife and drum corps from Pasadena, Cal. A year ago this aggregation captured a silver cup at the convention in Milwaukee.

The five musicians in this band lost no time in unlimbering after they struck Boston. They visited the principal hotels where comrades were housed and serenaded them. The members are O. W. Kinsmen, C. M. Babbitt, Robert Lyon, G. W. Wolfe and S. M. French.

Many of the surrounding Massachusetts posts came over the road in automobiles to attend the parade. As an example, Worcester showed up with 75 men out of a total membership of about 155. Thirty of the seventy-five signed up to march.

FOUR BUCKTAILS HERE.

Four members of the famous Pennsylvania Bucktails attracted considerable attention. According to W. A. McKay of Utica, Pa., not more than forty of the three regiments that made up this brigade are now surviving.

The parade was organized by departments, each being under the command of the senior officer at the encampment. Their positions were assigned by seniority of charter.

Following the parade, which started at 10 o'clock, the Women's Relief Corps opened its session at Tremont Temple. This was followed by the formal opening of session by the Daughters of Veterans at Paul Revere Hall, Mechanics Building, and the Sons of Veterans Auxiliary encampment at the ball room of the Hotel Somerset.

Commander-in-Chief Saltzgaber was tendered a complimentary dinner by the national aides at 2 p. m. and at 3 p. m., exemplification of ritual was held by the Massachusetts department officers.

At the Women's Relief Corps session, Mrs. Bell W. Bliss, national president, will read an address and meetings were extended by various patriotic societies.

ANDREW TABLET EXERCISES.

Dedication of a tablet to John A. Andrew, Massachusetts war Governor, is scheduled for Wednesday at 5 P. M., at 110 Charles street. Major Charles T. Harding will preside. The program includes, music by band, invocation by the Rev. Charles L. Shegur, chaplain-in-chief, G. A. R., band and audience singing "America."

The tablet will be presented by Judge David Lourie and the unveiling will be done by William L. Anderson, Jr.

After Mayor Curley has delivered a speech of acceptance, an address will be given by Benjamin A. Hamm, commander of the Massachusetts department. The exercises will close with the "Star-Spangled Banner."

No flags or standards except the national and State flags and department and post flags and standards will be allowed in the parade.

ROUTE AND ROSTER.

The line of march was one mile in length, over asphalt streets as follows:—Starting at Arlington and Boylston Streets, east on Boylston to Tremont, north on Tremont Street to Temple Place, east on Temple Place to Washington Street, north on Washington Street to Adams Square, where the parade will disband.

The roster of the parade was as follows: Platoon of Mounted Police under command of Sergeant Joseph W. Comerford.

The Sons of Veterans, U. S. A., S. S. Arne, commander-in-chief and under the command of Alfred M. Spear, division commander.

The Commander-in-Chief, National Officers, Executive Committee and Past Commander-in-Chief in automobiles.

G. A. R. Sidelights

Little Johnny Clem, known as the ten-year-old drummer boy of Shiloh, Tenn., now a major-general in the regular army, retired, was the center of attraction at the headquarters of the Hotel Vendome. Every one likes to hear Johnny talk. He was made sergeant when twelve years old and a second lieutenant after the war. He belongs to O. M. Mitchell post, Atlanta, Ga.

Talking about blockades, just get C. H. Tibbetts from Kansas City to spiel off on that subject and tell his reminiscences. He was on the Kearsage when George Dewey was second in command. He saw Dewey of Manila fame every day for one year and cooked his food.

Everybody knows Nat A. Crampton from Madison, Wis. He has been night watchman at the state capitol for over twenty-two years and won his spurs in Company F, 36th infantry. He belongs to the Fairchild Post, Madison.

Sitting near the door of the registration offices on Boylston Street in the Business Administration building, Boston University, you will find John H. Cline from Union Hill, N. J., who lost one leg in the battle of Fredericksburg, while serving in Co. K, 4th Infantry, N. Y. He is walking on crutches still. His pension is $72 a month which he tries to live upon.

M. W. Fare of Auburn, Me., had some prison experience during the Civil War in Liberty Prison, Danville Tobacco House and Salisbury stockade, North Carolina, and in all places nearly starved to death. He ate cabbage for two weeks. He was first in the 1st D. C. Cavalry, Company M., then was transferred to Company H., 1st Maine cavalry. He has been weigh master at Togus Soldiers' Home for many years.

Mrs. Eva F. Godfrey from Seattle, Washington, past department president of the W. R. C., came with three car loads of Pacific G. A. R. and W. R. C. "We are teaching pure Americanism and child welfare out in our communities if any one wants to know what the W. R. C. is doing these days," she said.

WORLD WAR GENERAL GUEST OF HUB

NURSE DEPICTS SHOOTING OF LINCOLN

Lives Over Again the Troublesome Times When She Served Her Country

"I was watching the play—when there was a funny short sound, and somebody screamed—and then we knew that the man who ran along the boxes and jumped onto the stage had shot the President. I was so frightened I didn't think of all the trouble that would come because Abraham Lincoln was dead."

That is how little Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Smith, eighty-three years old, and a nurse in the Civil War, remembers the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. She sat today in her room at the Hotel Vendomé and lived over the hectic days of '61.

"Yes," she said, "I remember the President very well. He used to come to the hospital sometimes and talk to the boys. They all loved him, and I guess he loved them all right.

"The last thing he ever said to me was 'When this war is over, Miss Smith, I shall never forget the Northern women.' Well, he never lived to see the end of it, but the Northern women who nursed in the hospitals will never forget him."

Mrs. Mary Smith was stationed in Baltimore during most of the war, and there, she says, she never had a bed to sleep on. Day and night service those nurses had, and when they slept, they laid on a mattress on a floor at one end of their ward.

"Twenty-one cents a day we had for rations," she tells, "and $12 a month pay. But somehow I never could save a cent of that, the boys needed little luxuries so bad, and so when I came to go home I hadn't enough to get a decent dress to travel in."

Raw pork was the mainstay of the army, according to Mrs. Mary Smith. Raw pork cut thin and placed between slabs of hardtack took the place of the canned corned beef of the last war.

"Whisper Waltz" and "Raggedy Ann" Are Coming Dances

New York, Aug. 12.—Plans have been outlined before the annual convention of the International Association of Dancing Masters for the elimination of extremes forms of dancing. If the plans outlined are carried out, the "Wildcat Whirl," the "Tiger Twaddle" and the "Camel Canter" will be replaced by the "Whisper Waltz," the fox trots of fast and jerky movements will give way to the "Raggedy Ann," described as a fox trot in slow rhythm.

The association has forbidden the teaching or dancing by mail. The members declared it cannot be done.

'WOLVES' ROAM IN HUB PARKS, SAYS WATSON

Councillor Would Have Police Protect Morals of Young Girls and Boys

City Councillor James A. "Jerry" Watson charged in the City Council that the Common, the Public Garden and Boston's playgrounds and parks were inadequately policed.

"The morals of our young girls and boys should be protected," he said. Instead of staging riot calls for purely publicity purposes the police should be protecting the youths of the city.

"We are not going to be bombarded by a mob of klu kluxers. But you will find in our parks and playgrounds many wolves in sheep's clothing.

"I will not vote to increase the police department unless conditions in the police department improve and unless Boston gets home rule.

144,000 Fewer Visits Each Year

Community Health Association Forced to Reduce Service

To the People of Boston:

The Board of Managers of the Community Health Association announces a serious curtailment of its work to take place September 1, 1924, at which time 50 nurses will go off the payroll, as a result of insufficient funds to meet the ever-increasing demands for the services of the Association in the crowded districts of Boston. A reduction of $100,000 in the annual budget is imperative at once.

Inasmuch as the plan includes a reduction of one-third of the nursing staff and means 480 fewer visits by nurses every day, the Association does not feel justified in assuming this responsibility without due notification to the people of Boston, from whom the Association derives its support.

Mayor Curley has offered to give what aid the City can afford, and is taking over the baby hygiene work in five of the more crowded districts. In spite of this assistance, however, approximately 10,000 people are left unprotected in districts which have been dependent upon the services of the Community Health Association for thirty-eight years.

The Association will continue, however, to care for the 34,000 who will not be cut off from this source of help by the reduction. This curtailed program will call for $400,000 between now and January, 1926, and it is this problem which we, the undersigned, must face with the co-operation of the people of Boston.

SENATOR KEYES DECLARES JAPS DECEIVED U. S.

Let Laborers Come Over Here Despite Gentlemen's Agreement

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 12.—In a talk before the Manchester Kiwanis Club, United States Senator Henry W. Keyes declared that Japan did not play fair with this country in regard to immigration. He said:

"Japan agreed not to let any of her nationals come over here for the purpose of being laborers if we would let them issue their passports. We agreed to this, but soon found out that a number of Japs were coming here as laborers.

"There are over 100,000 Japanese on the Pacific Coast now, and they are rapidly acquiring property. Their children, supposedly American citizens, have faith in some sort of a dual citizenship which in time of stress reverts back to Japan.

"Our new immigration law is the most constructive piece of legislation ever undertaken to solve what is one of the real problems before the country today. Its purpose is to protect the citizenship of this country, and the time has come for restriction, for the taking of steps which will safeguard all our cherishd American ideals."

The Senator also said that a new law would probably be enactd which would use origins instead of the census for its basis. This, he said, would do away with the supposed discrimination of which other countries now accuse us.

Toothsome Crabs Threatened With Extinction

Washington, Aug. 12.—The crab for which Chesapeake Bay is famous is threatened with extinction, according to word brought to the White House by O. P. Wearley of Washington.

Wearley urged upon C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge the necessity for a three-year prohibition against the capture of the lady crab and also a five-year bar to dredging operations off the Virginia coast.

Slempt advised Wearley to call the matter to the attention of Congress in December.

DAVIS' PLEDGE IS TO RESTORE CONFIDENCE

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 12.—The heavens were not kind to John W. Davis when he made his speech accepting the Democratic nomination for the presidency. A steady shower of rain, accompanied by thunder and lightning, continued during his speech, causing many who had gone to the open air exercises in Goff Plaza to go away.

Davis was protected by a shelter built over the platform and continued bravely through his speech to the end. Thousands who had neither raincoat nor umbrellas stuck it out with him and applauded with enthusiasm. It was estimated that many millions heard the speech by radio.

To the thunder of tumultuous applause he indicted the Republican party, endorsed the League of Nations, and pledged himself if elected to bring back to the people confidence in their government.

The address of notification was delivered by Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, who said the nominee had been tried by the acid test and adjudged by all fair-minded men as a liberal and a progressive.

In beginning his address, Judge Davis said he could heartily approve all the declarations of party principle in the Democratic platform. "For these things I thank God," said he, "and take courage."

MUST REVIVE CONFIDENCE.

Referring to the chaos following the war, the nominee said the Government has fallen under the prevalent distrust.

"To bring the Government back to the people is and always has been the doctrine of Democracy," he declared. "Today, in addition, it is the supreme need of the hour to bring back to the people confidence in the government."

He charged the Republican party with having "brought forth corruption in high places; favoritism in legislation; division and discord in party councils; impotence in Government and a hot struggle for profit and advantage which has bewildered us at home and humiliated us abroad."

He reviewed the recent scandals at Washington and said, "such crimes are too gross to be forgotten or forgiven."

"We shall strive for things that look to these great ends," he continued, referring to the so-called progressive principles of the Democratic party, "for the education of our youth, not only in knowledge gathered from past ages, but in the wholesome virtue of self-help; for the protection of women and children from human greed and unequal laws; for the prevention of child labor and for the suppression of illicit traffic in soul-destroying drugs.

"We shall conserve all the natural resources of the country and prevent the hand of monopoly from closing on them and on our water powers, so that our children after us shall still find this a fair land to dwell in.

PROTECT OUR VETERANS.

"And ot the veterans of our wars, especially to those who were stricken and wounded in the country's service and whose confidence has been so cruelly abused, we shall give, in honor and honesty, the grateful care they have so justly earned."

Referring to labor, Judge Davis said that "democracy in government and democracy in industry alike demand the free recognition of the right of all those who work, in whatever rank or place, to share in all decisions that affect their welfare."

SOUTH STATION MEN TO DECIDE BETWEEN UNIONS

About 400 station and miscellaneous workers employed at South Station by the Boston Terminal Company will take a referendum vote to determine whether they shall be represented in negotiations with the management by the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes, or by the Brotherhood of Railroad Station Employes. All returns on the referendum must be filed before midnight of August 28.

FIST FIGHT IN CITY COUNCIL IS HALTED

Councillors Purcell and Watson Clash in Debate Over Widening of Streets

Members of the Municipal Supply Deparament are considering the advisibility of purchasing boxing gloves for use of the members of City Council.

Only the interference of aPtrolman Joseph Smith prevented City Councillors James T Purcell and James A. ("Jerry") Watson from staging a fistic battle in the council chambers as the result of an acrimonious debate over the order providing for the widening of Tremont and Kneeland streets.

The order has been on the table since uly. It failed of passage, following the titit between the two councilmen, lacking two votes. The bill carries with it an appropriation of $1,200,000.

The ruckus came about when Councillor Watson intimated there were certain sordid transactions in connection with the proposed widening of the streets. When he hinted some of the matters involved could not stand much publicity, Councilor Purcell shoved his chin to within a few inches of his colleague's face.

"I'll call your bluff, Watson," he shouted. "Now is the time if you have anything to say; say it before the council. And if you say anything wrong, I'm going to knock you down."

Councillor Watson's face flushed an angry red. "I've been brought up as a gentleman and no man will knock me down when I am telling the truth," he retorted.

Out of deference to absent members, Watson refused to make his threatened revelations. Later he declared that if council would postpone action for one week, "I'll promise you, Mr. Purcell, that I will furnish you with information and if it is not true you may knock me down."

Beauty

LESTER DARIUS TURNER

Eastport, Me., Aug. 12.—In the first beauty contest for men ever conducted here, Lester Darius Turner has been declared a winner.

He is twenty-one years old and the son of Levi and Maude Watt Turner of Eastport.

Here is the best description the six girl judges could give when it was over:

"Five feet nine inches tall, weighing 135 pounds, dark, graceful, romantic in appearance, athletic." He is a brunette.

He comes honestly enough by his athletic look, for he has captained the high school teams in baseball, football and basketball.

A modest young man is Lester Darius Turner and he was loath to accept the palm for beauty when it was forced upon him.

He has a low, pleasing voice, and says many interesting things, according to the girls, but is not a glutton for the limelight. He is employed in a local industrial plant.

Of course, he is unmarried. Whether he can remain so, now that his charms have received public recognition by the sex best calculated to know, is another matter.

The prize was a silver cup. It was awarded at a dance in the local armory. Among the other entrants were Fred Savage, Naitland Norwood, John Ferris, Billy Gallagher of Bangor and Ted Tedford of Portland.

GREAT MEN IN DISCORD OVER HANGING

(In view of the stir over the recent electrocution here of Cyrille J. Vandenhecke, these opinions of famous Britishers on capital punishment are of especial interest.)

By Universal Service.

London, Aug. 12.—Some opinions of great men on the question of whether murderers should be hanged or painlessly put to death in the lethal chamber are as follows:

G. Bernard Shaw—I do not believe that the community ever will or ever should give up its powers of life or death over its members by granting an absolutely unconditional right to live in it.

G. Bernard Shaw

A. Conan Doyle

I think the present method of judicial killing hypocritical and spectacular, which is absurd now that nobody is allowed to look at it. It is also unpleasant and cruel in respect of the intense form of stage fright and the terrible anticipation to which its subjects are exposed.

They should pass away painlessly in their sleep.

Dean Inge—I would substitute a lethal chamber for hanging. The death penalty should be inflicted without public disgrace on habitual criminals and other incorrigibly bad citizens.

Sir A. Conan Doyle—I am in favor of the suspension of the death penalty for ten years as an experiment.

Sir Nevil Macready (formerly Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police)—I am in favor of retaining the death penalty as at present; the facilities for appeal providing an efficient safeguard. The loose and at times ineffective discipline of the Australians during the late war is directly traceable to the omission of the death penalty from their disciplinary code, and resulted among other things in many hundreds of their men in France being in a constant state of desertion.

WOMAN BRANDS YOUTH WITH MARK OF KLAN

Dansville, Ils., Aug. 12.—Held by three men on a highway between Rankin and Paxton, while a fourth member of the party, a woman, branded him with the letters "K. K. K." Ralph Aaron, eighteen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Aaron of Rankin, made no report of the attack for several days, until he was compelled to visit a physician, it was learned.

MRS. LONG DEMANDS COUNSEL FEES

MRS. RICHARD F. LONG

Wife of the son of Richard H. Long, former Democratic candidate for governor and Framingham manufacturer, who makes a plea to the Suffolk Probate Court for support pending the disposal of her separate support case brought against her husband, Richard F. Long of Boston.

MRS. LONG ASKS MONEY TO PAY COUNSEL FEES

Mrs. Grace D. Long of Framingham who is suing her husband, Richard Fernald Long of Boston, son of Richard H. Long, manufacturer and former Democratic leader, for separate support in the Suffolk Probate Court, has filed a petition with that court for support pending the disposal of her case, and for money for counsel fees.

In her original separate support petition, Mrs. Long accused her husband of being unfaithful and claimed that she was destitute and without means of supporting herself and their only child, Dorothy, six years old.

She alleged that she had been without support from her husband since November 25, 1923.

Mrs. Long secured an attachment for $15,000 on her husband's property, at present in his father's possession, and also an injunction preventing him from disposing of $26,193.81 due him from the United States government as an overassessment in Federal taxes.

The property on which Mrs. Long secured the $15,000 attachment was left her husband by his mother, Mrs. Mabelle H. Long, who was killed in an airplane accident, July 10, 1920, at Salisbury Beach.

PASTOR WHO DENOUNCED KLAN IS FORCED OUT

Middletown, Ct., Aug. 12.—The Rev. E. P. Cutler, pastor of the South Congregational Church of East Hampton for the past three years, has been asked to resign by the prudential committee, and the belief is that this action has been taken because of Mr. Cutler's outspoken opposition to the Ku Klux Klan.

Mr. Cutler denounced the Klan openly, both in print and spoken word, and has claimed its power is on the wane. It is believed this action has aroused the dislike of members of his church.

CALL DOCTOR TO FACE DEATH CHARGES

New York, Aug. 12.—Although he commented on what he considered the inadequacy of the bail, Magistrate House, in homicide court, continued Dr. Harley T. Cannon of No. 111 Madison Avenue, in $3,500 for a hearing tomorrow.

Dr. Cannon was arrested on a charge of homicide after the death on Aug. 7, in his office at No. 29 East Eighty third street, of Monica Maloney, twenty-four, of Brookline, Mass.

After an autopsy by Dr. A. T. Gonzales, assistant medical examiner, it was said that Miss Maloney had died as a result of an operation apparently performed ten days or two weeks previously.

Assistant District Attorney John F. Manley told Magistrate House he would be ready to proceed on Wednesday, and the hearing was put off until then. L. H. Klegharz, attorney for Dr. Cannon, asked the court for a postponement until next week, so that his client, who has been ill, may have a rest. The court refused.

Dr. Cannon hobbled into court with the aid of a cane. He wore amber spectacles.

ONE-ARM BOOTLEG DEAD

Estranged Wife, Unconscious Beside Body, Later Says He Shot Himself

The body of Joseph Capella, known to the police as the "One-Armed Bootlegger" was found with a bullet through the heart in his apartment at No. 63 Salem street today.

Beside him was a pistol with a number of exploded cartridges, while nearby was the unconscious form of his pretty wife, Rosaria, who had been living apart from him.

At the Relief Hospital, where both were taken, Capella was pronounced dead, but his wife revived and was found to be suffering only from hysteria and a bullet burn in her right shoulder.

To Inspector James A. Dennessey, homicide expert of the bureau of criminal investigation, and Stenographer Gill she said her husband killed himself after she had refused to return to him.

The couple quarreled two weeks ago, Mrs. Capella, who is twenty-six years old and attractive, going to live with her parents on the fourth floor of the same house. She took the two children with her.

Today, she said, she went out to buy a hairnet, and returning encountered her husband in the door of the Capella apartment. He said:

"Will you come back to me, Rosaria?"

"Yes, I will," she told the inspector she replied, "if you will stop bootlegging and stealing."

REFUSES HER PLEA.

"I will not do it," Capella shouted.

"Then I will not live with you."

"All right," said he, "we'll both go together," according to the woman, and he reached for a gun on the table of the kitchen. She jumped and seized his arm, trying to wrest the weapon away from him. She said she felt a burn on her right shoulder, and heard an explosion. Then she fainted. It is believed that Capella, thinking he had shot his wife, killed himself.

50 NURSES MUST GO FOR LACK OF FUNDS

Fifty trained nurses go off the payroll of the Commmunity Health Association on September 1, as a result of a retrenchment policy which the Board of Managers has been forced to inaugurate because of lack of finances.

This means that 144,000 fewer calls on the sick and untrained families in the crowded districts will be made by the association during the next year than have been made in the past period of equal length, according to President William A. Dupee.

Four hundred and eight fewer people will be cared for by the nurses each day, and it will result in a reduction of the budget of $13,000 between September 1 and January 1, 1926.

Mayor Curley has agreed to have the city take over the baby hygiene work in several of the more crowded districts of the city. These are Charlestown, East Boston, and the North, South and West Ends. This work will be under the direct supervision of Dr. F. X. Mahoney, Commissioner of Health.

WORST OF SEASON IN BAY

Steamer Rose Standish Loses a Part of Guard Rail, but Proceeds

Accidents and near accidents were frequent in Boston Harbor today as a result of the heavy fog. It was the worst of the season.

On her 6:30 trip from Nantasket to Boston, the Nantasket liner Rose Standish was in collision with an unidentified government vessel in the lower harbor.

What the damage to the government vessel was the port authorities were unable to discover.

The Rose Standish lost part of her guard rail, but was able to proceed to Boston. There was much excitement on her decks immediately after the crash.

A few hours later the Rose Standish narrowly avoided collision with the Nantasket of the same line, which was on her way from Pemberton on the 8:10 trip.

Both boats were barely moving through the fog. The Standish was off her course, apparently.

They were halted a few feet from each other, off Long Island. They were reversed hurriedly and went their way.

On the same trip the Nantasket rammed a Buoy 3 off Castle Island, without serious results.

Commuters who were on the Nantasket reached their offices late and with nervees considerably frayed as a result of the boat's mishaps.

There were rumors of other collisions. But they could not be verified. Ocean steamships overdue in Boston were reported waiting outside the lightship for the fog to lift.

ELIMINATION OF CARL FISHER BIG SURPRISE AT NEWPORT

ANZAC STAR AMONG LOSERS

Newport, R. I., Aug. 12.—Ranking lawn tennis stars did not have it all their own way in the opening rounds of the historic cup singles on the turf of the Casino here today. True, William M. Johnston, the famous "Little Bill" of Davis Cup defence; Norman E. Brookes, the Australian master of the courts; Clarence J. Griffin, of the Pacific Coast forces, and S. Howard Voshell came through to stand as survivors in the third round. Their successes were, however, by no means one-sided, according to seeded player form.

On the other hand, Dr. George King, New York, former Columbia star, operated for an upset. By some wonderful volleying and aided by the double faults on service by Carl Fischer, the Philadelphia star, the latter, a member of the seeded group, was defeated, 7—5, 6—1.

HARD ONE FOR JOHNSTON.

Johnston held the centre of the stage so far as attention was concerned. He had soft opposition in the first round so that by indifferent driving he overwhelmed E. W. Feibleman, New York, 6—1, 6—2. In the second round "Little Bill" met his young protege, Irving Weinstein, San Francisco. The latter knew every angle and drive of his master. Weinstein actually outdrove Johnston in the second set to win it after the Davis Cup defender had led 5—3 on games. Weinstein was wonderfully fast in his footing. His anticipation was as keen as a knife so that he gave Johnston a tremendous battle before the famous star won 6—3, 6—8, 6—2.

There was a heavy casualty list among the international contenders for the Davis Cup. Two of the Australian "colts" went to defeat. J. E. Kalms fought Walter Westbrook, former Michigan left-hander, now hailing from Los Angeles, two desperate deuce sets. Then Kalms, whose forcing tactics and acting service were remarkably good, suffered cramp in his left leg. The handicap settled the fray, Westbrook winning 10—8, 7—9, 6—0. Lucien E. Williams, Chicago, Yale's former intercollegiate champion, by spirited overhead stroking, backed by good volleying, outplayed R. E. Schlesinger of the Australian team, 0—6, 6—1, 6—3.

BOSTON MAN WINNER.

Nathaniel W. Niles, the Boston veteran, proved in fine stroke. He began by mastering Wray Brown, St. Louis, No. [illegible] of the Missouri Valley ranking, 6—0, 6—4, to finish by taking the measure of Ignacio Borbolla of the Mexican team, 6—3, 6—4.

Harvey Snodgrass, San Francisco, No. 9 of the national ranking, had great difficulty in maintaining his place. He met formidable opposition from Fitz Mercur, Lehigh University, and only his fine chop stroking saved the Californian, who won, 10—8, 7—5.

The Kinsey brothers, Howard and Robert, appeared here today, but are not to compete in the singles, which Howard won last season. They are scheduled for the doubles. The starred match of the third round tomorrow will be Niles and Griffin, a meeting of the East and West.

MISS WILLS WINS FIRST MATCH SINCE RETURN

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Twenty-seven entries, in addition to three of the five players who had drawn byes, advanced to the second round of the national women's singles championship at the West Side Tennis Club today. Mrs. Molla B. Mallory of New York reached the third round through her defeat of Miss Carmen Wien of Mountain Lakes, N. J., in straight sets at 6—1, 6—4.

The match between Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, Calif., winner of the 1923 championship and Olympic titleholder for this year, and Mrs. L. C. Beaupre of Quebec drew the largest gallery of spectators. It was Miss Wills' first appearance on the courts since her return from abroad.

She outplayed her opponent from start to finish, her placements constantly catching the Canadian girl off her guard.

Miss Wills' service and driving were excellent. Only twice during the match did Mrs. Beaupre seriously threaten the champion, in the fourth and fifth games of the second set she brought the score to deuce, but Miss Wills eventually captured both and won the match at 6—0, 6—0.

Chicago School Stars Join St. John's M. A. Football Team

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 12.—St. John's Military Academy, which faces a hard gridiron schedule this year, with most of its games being played on foreign fields, will have the help of two Chicago High School stars of 1923 in their efforts to gain the military prep school championship of the East, it was announced today.

They are Milton Charles Hanson and Frank Elvin Finkler of Hyde Park High, winner of two grid championships in the past three years.

Finkler was to be the captain of the Chicago team this year, being elected by his mates for the post, but he preferred finishing up high school at the Manlius institution.

According to reports received by Major Duston, registrar at St. John's, the scholastic standing of both are of the highest order. In addition they are characterized as two of the greatest scholastic athletes ever developed in Chicago.

Dr. A. H. Kaust, coach of the cadets, will return again this year, and will have as his assistant Captain William Dirtee.

The feature game on the cadet schedule will bring the St. John's eleven in action against the famed Staunton Military Academy team of Staunton, W. Va., at Washington, D. C. It will be the first intersectional military prep school grid struggle ever staged. Definite date for it has not been set.

FILENE'S WIN 9-5 GAME FROM HOVEY'S

Filene's defeated Hovey's, 9 to 5, in a Retail Store league championship game. White's team is a game ahead of Filene's and has one more game to play, while Filene's has two. Siney, the Hovey right fielder, injured his leg in the fourth inning when he collided with his teammate, Hutcheson. He was obliged to quit.

KID PITCHERS SAVE CUBS WITH ALEXANDER OUT

By NICK FLATLEY

APPARENT misfortunes are frequently disguised luck. Take the case of Grover Cleveland Alexander, the great Cub pitcher. A few weeks ago, Alex was hit on the wrist by a batted ball and knocked right out of the pastime for a month or so. That blow just about ruined all Cub pennant chances. The remarkable veteran was showing the way to the staff, a regular Moses leading the boys up to the pinnacle.

When he passed out, some of the chaps who were going along smoothly started to stagger. Manager Wil Killifer was very much up against it. Looked as if a brilliant start had all been for naught.

But Manager Will was anxious to get a piece of the world's series money. He spent no time in vain repinings. He called in some of the boys he had anchored out in the bush leagues. And he put them right into the pitching box. The Cubs began to win again. They attached themselves to third place and seem to intend to remain there.

THE CUBS have three kid pitchers now who rate as regulars—Joe Bush, Rip Wheeler and Jack Blake. Bush and Wheeler come from the Texas League, Blake from Seattle. They call Bush "Joe," of course. He tossed a full game against the Giants. He was defeated, but with perfect support would have beaten the champion, 1 to 0.

Wheeler was chased into the Giant game, after Kaufman had been knocked out in the third inning. He permitted the swatting McGraws just one base blow in the duration of the conflict. Blake, finishing up, has been showing the same kind of stuff. These three youngsters make the Chicago team a decidedly dangerous ball club for the next campaign, a team that may determine just where the flag goes in this present scramble. Some of the old timers are worried as they sit on the bench. That's the tough part of the baseball life, the watching when ambitious youth steps up heartlessly to grasp the laurels as well as the livelihood.

GETTING three real pitchers in the course of a few weeks is one of those baseball miracles. The team that gets one in a couple of years is more than satisfied. But the Cubs have a trio, and are an illustrous example of the value of planting potential heroes out in the little leagues. The Chicago club has plenty of money, and spends it. It practically owns a couple of subsidiary teams. And it has the habit, when necessity beckons, of thereby being able to produce the new raw material, with some of the edges filed off.

THE injury to Alexander, which we started talking about, might serve as an object lesson to a lot of lesser pitchers. The big chap was hurt pitching in batting practice. Nine out of ten regular leaguers feel offended if their managers ask them to chuck to the batters. That's supposed to be a job for the rookies. But the great pitchers go right out and do it without being asked. Matty did it. Dick Rudolph, Addie Joss, Cy Young—all the real stars. They know that the combination of hard work plus the ability is the only way to greatness. Young men, in life as well as athletics, might think this over, and profit.

ZIEGLER BUYS STRING OF 7 THOROUGHBREDS

William A. Zeigler has purchased a racing stable and wants to win the Kentucky Derby. In order to compete with the best, he has acquired a string of seven two-year-olds from John E. Madden.

The juveniles are Star Love, Star Saint, Border Land, Needle Gun, Pot Shot, Gamble and Mirador. Mr. Zeigler is retaining W. J. Speirs as trainer.

Fletcher and Umpire Pfirman in Battle Royal

Philadelphia, Aug. 12.—Manager Arthur Fletcher of the Philadelphia Nationals and Umpire Pfirman, came to blows in the third inning of the first game of a double header with Pittsburgh here today. Pfirman ordered Glazner, Philadelphia pitcher, to the bench for protesting a decision, and Manager Fletcher, taking up the argument, punched the umpire on the jaw, the fans declared. Pfirman is said to have retaliated by beating Fletcher with his mask. Police separated the disputants.

RUTH IS NOW AFTER MORE NEW RECORDS

Chicago, Aug. 12 (A.P.)—Having acquired all the batting leadership in the American League, Babe Ruth is now after his own personal records, and in averages including games of Thursday, was within three home runs of his August 8 standing in 1921, the year he pushed his home run record to 59.

Babe has also crossed the .400 mark in batting for his first time, due to eighteen hits, including six home runs, in the last week. His best previous record was .393 for the 1923 season. The six homers raised his total to 38 so far this year.

Ruth has a scoring average of little better than one run a game, as he has played in 107 games and registered 105 times. He has the field to himself in total bases with 292, a record of 147 hits, which besides his four-baggers, include 25 doubles and 6 triples.

New Short Wave Adapter Coming Tomorrow

Those short waves again.

The Boston American short wave receiver proved such a success that tomorrow we will have something new in this line.

It's a short wave adapter, using either one or two tubes, which, when placed ahead of your present set, converts it into a short wave receiver without further change.

This means you don't have to build a whole new set to get the short waves on.

See tomorrow's paper.

KLAN'S MYTHS AND FABLES EXPOSED BY CONFESSION

of stuff fed to the people in the rural sections.

In every hamlet in Massachusetts it is being repeated.

The Hated "MAC"

But in the security of klavern meetings, where one may be as foolish as one pleases, I have heard claims even wilder.

"When a man on the street calls you 'Mac,' don't answer him," a kleagle of my acquaintance once told his followers.

"The letters M A C stand for the K. of C. slogan 'Make America Catholic.'

"They recognize each other that way and identify strangers in the same manner."

Not a man in that konklave smiled. It is astonishing how the American sense of humor can deteriorate, once you take up this hood and robe business and start using unfamiliar words for familiar things.

One of the stock bits of propaganda of the Klan is the famous Leo the Thirteenth letter.

Many Believers

This letter, according to the wild story, is supposed to have been written to an American Cardinal by ope Leo many years ago.

It is alleged that it laid the plans for a peaceful penetration of America by the Catholics and for the ultimate taking over of the powers of government by representatives of the Church of Rome.

I have seen "copies" of this letter. They were so patently faked that one would think even the dullest intelligence could penetrate the hoax. But the latter is taken seriously.

There is no hoary fake that is too ancient for use by some Klan organizers.

What the Menace and publications of the same calibre dropped long since as too stupid for consideration certain chiefs of the K.K.K. have picked up.

Of course the master hoax of all is that concerning the K. of C. fourth degree.

In His Own Blood

As the story goes, the candidate takes an oath which he transcribes in his own blood, to kill Protestants, particularly Masons, and to do it under particularly horrifying circumstances.

I have been told of this oath by many klansmen outside of konklave, and I have heard it read in klavern meetings.

Organizers and men of the Klan Secret Service invent the new fakes which are being used in the organization of rural towns. If there were no "opish plots" and so forth, these men would be out of work. So they take care to see that there are such plots. They submit their evidence to those who appointed them. They can be trusted to frighten weakminded people half to death on ten minutes' notice.

New stories are being thought up every day. The latest is that every Catholic church has a sub-cellar stacked with firearms. One night, the whisperers of the Klan say, these weapons will be used to slay the Protestants.

"A White Man"

Enough attention has been devoted to Klan fakes, I think. But I would like to say, in leaving the subject that the number of persons who believe such stories is greater than most enlightened people think.

In closing this article, I shall reveal one of the minor secrets of the oranization that should, more properly, have gone into another portion of this story.

It is this. When two klansmen are outside the Klavern discussing a third, even when no aliens are present, they do not speak of him as a Kluxer. They will say "He's a white man."

That is to prevent the klansmen from getting into the habit of using the name of their order indiscriminately.

Copyright, 1924, by the Boston American.

(In tomorrow's article I shall have something to say concerning the manner in which a klavern is organized in virgin territory).

KLAN ISSUE DOMINATES ARKANSAS PRIMARY

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 12.—The Ku Klux Klan issue was brought to the fore in connection with the Democratic State primary to be held today. A paid advertisement in the Little Rock papers signed "Little Rock Klan No. 1, Realm of Arkansas," indorsed Le Cazort, candidate for Governor, and declared that five of the six candidates had sought Klan indorsement. Retorts from various candidates printed as advertisements also appeared.

BOYCOTT KLAN MERCHANTS IN LEICESTER

Leicester, Aug. 12.—Feeling here against the Ku Klux Klan is at a high pitch. Anti-Klan men are following those suspected of joining, and when they are satisfied they are members, these members, if they happen to be in business, are dropped by customers opposed to the Kluxers.

Some of the town's workmen also are refusing to work with alleged Klan members. An instance of this came when a squad of highway employes under the direction of Officer James Manning of Leicester Center went on strike for a few minutes rather than work with a truck driver, who, it is claimed, is a member of the Klan.

The man was sent from Leicester to East Brookfield to get a truckload of gravel. At the gravel pit eight or ten shovelers were waiting for him. He backed his truck into the pit, and then the men laid down their shovels, some of them saying that the man had admitted to them a night or two before he had attended a Klan meeting.

Officer Manning saw it was useless to attempt to persuade the men to load the truck and the driver was sent back to Leicester. Superintendent Charles J. Rice of the highway department notified the owner of the truck that the town wanted it, but the men refused to work with the driver.

Before the truck left the gravel pit it is said that several inscriptions of "K. K. K." were marked on it in chalk. Leicester is said now to have about 35 active members of the Klan.

Dr. Brandreth Symonds Dead

New York, Aug. 12.—Dr. Brandreth Symonds, chief medical director of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, is dead, aged sixty-one years.

HEAD OF POLICE BAND FACES TRIAL BOARD

Band Leader Joseph Sullivan, Boston police department, faced a trial board at police headquarters charged with abandoning his traffic post in the market district on July 26.

Sergeant O'Day was complainant. While making a tour of inspection he claims to have found Sullivan absent from the traffic corner of Commercial and South Market streets.

Sullivan denied the allegation, declaring he took his post at the hour assigned and remained there.

Unable to find Sullivan during the forenoon, O'Day told the board he put a substitute in the band leader's place. The substitute corroborated O'Day's statements.

First Peace Treaty Signed by Klan and Its Foes

Niles, Ohio, Aug. 12.—What is believed to be the first agreement between the Ku Klux Klan and Anti-Klan factions has been signed here as a culmination of recent disorders.

The Agreement provides that both sides forget their differences and "bury the hatchet" as a means of promoting peace in the community. It was signed by members of the Klan and Knights of the Flaming Circle, an Anti-Klan organization, at a conference presided over by Sheriff John Thomas.

The agreement provides that no crosses or circles be burned in Weatherfield township, in which this city is located.

WILL BLONDE OR BRUNETTE WIN BEAUTY TEST?

Will a blonde or a brunette be chosen as the MOST CHARMING girl in Greater Boston?

Or will the "golden girl" with lovely titian locks be selected by the judges as the most alluring young woman in this city or vicinity?

The Boston American doesn't care which class of pulchritude the most fascinating girl comes in. Somebody must win that wonderful free trip of one week to Atlantic City during Atlantic City Pageant Week (September 2 to 6), and the Boston American does not care who wins.

Whether she is blonde, brunette or a red-head this newspaper does not know, or care, but it means to find her with the assistance of its readers.

Just think of it, girls, all you have to do is fill out the entry coupon and send one or more photographs. From the hundreds of photographs sent in the judges will select 25 and then will meet the 25 personally to make a final choice.

If you win you will go to Atlantic City for a carefree week with your mother or other chaperon of your own selection and every reasonable expense of both will be paid by the American. The expenses will include railroad fares, all bills at the fashionable Hotel Traymore, motor and yacht rides, theatre tickets, etc., in fact, everything that a girl would want while in this great seaside resort.

Such a trip would cost hundreds of dollars, in fact, could not be duplicated, as "Miss Boston," winner of the American's contest will be permitted to participate in all the events of the Atlantic City pageant, including the national beauty tournament, rolling chair parade and bathing beauty contest. She may win the honor of being chosen "Miss America," the lovliest girl in the country.

FORFEITS WAGES TO PAY FOR STOLEN CIDER

Westboro, Aug. 12.—Herbert O. Danforth of Leominster, employed on the farm of Charles A. King, in Northboro, was in District Court on charges of drunkenness and larceny of half a barrel of cider from King.

He agreed to forfeit three days' pay due him in payment for the cider and the larceny charge was dismissed. He was fined $10 on a drunkenness charge.

CHINESE TONG WAR LOOMS IN BOSTON

Washington, Aug. 12.—A new war of the Chinese Tongs is brewing, according to disclosures made here by Chicago attorneys representing the deposed head of the On Leong Tong, the largest and richest organization of Chinese merchants in this country.

Already blood has been shed in Chicago's Chinatown provoking demands for vengeance which have echoed through the Chinese quarters of New York and Boston.

The present trouble is another chapter in the story of the age-old struggle between the Lee, Moy and Chin families to gain control of the Tongs.

Chin Jack Lenn, fabulously wealthy retired Chinese merchant in Chicago and known to every Chinaman from coast to coast, has been head of the On Leong Tong for the past five years. Recently, after proceedings within the Tong which correspond fairly closely to an American impeachment trial, he was convicted of mishandling their funds, deposed as president and ousted from membership.

has already added $90,000,000 to her bread bill. It is a good deal to pay to help along our Republican election. But the English make a mistake in comforting themselves with the theory that "there is no serious shortage of wheat." There is a shortage, and wise people will buy what they need instead of waiting for it to come down.

JUDGE TALLEY says: "The United States is the most lawless nation, and most criminals are youngsters."

That's just it. The United States is a youngster. Youth is always lawless. Lawlessness is terrible, but there is one worse thing and that is stagnation.

Parts of the West that were once most lawless in the old gold fever days, are now typically law abiding. This country will settle down. "There is a cure for exuberance, none for sterility."

Seven Children in Need

Helping Hand Editor:

Can you help a mother of seven children, who would be glad to receive clothes. My children are girls 11, 10, 8, 6, 4, 1, and boy 2 years. Won't you send me something, as my children are in need of clothes. Can make over anything, as I sew all our own clothes. MRS. A. B.

Clothes for Size 38

Helping Hand Editor:

Please send me the address of some lady who can wear some suit coats and blue suit, size 38. Also have some underwear that is too small for my girl, which will fit a girl about 12 or 14 years old; also have two other coats.

MRS. M. McP.

Many thanks. Mrs. L. G. and her daughter, 12, are in need of just the clothing you mention. We are sending you her address.

Clothes for Baby

Helping Hand Editor:

If you will send me the address of someone needing clothes for a new baby or one a year old, I will send a package. Everything has been used and some rompers are faded, but all are whole and in clean condition. Would like to send these to a family where there are other children as I have things that can be made over.

Many thanks, Mrs. J. O'B., mother of four little children, and expecting another visit from the stork, can make good use of all the things you have to offer.

Needs Baby Carriage

Helping Hand Editor:

I wonder if one of your kind readers could give me a baby carriage. I have two babies, one two years old and one two months, besides two boys, 10 and 5. We have had much sickness and my husband is not able to work all the time, and we are having a hard time. As soon as I am strong I must go to the hospital for an operation and I should be out in the air all I can, but am not able to carry my babies in my arms, so if I had a carriage it would be a great help to me.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney
Boston Health Commissioner

CHEER Up, the heat is good for you!

Wilted collars and jerky dispositions to the contrary, the Summer months are positively the best for you.

Dr. Mahoney

Cold is far more deadly than heat. Blizzards leave a toll of illness and fatalities in their wake that would do credit to a tornado. Pneumonia and diseases of the throat and lungs trim down the population every Winter and burden mankind in the northern hemispheres with innumerable discomforts.

In Winter you are huddled together in street cars and trains that are frequently damp, cold and draughty. Close confinement breeds epidemics and wears down physical resistance.

In Summer there is no scarcity of fresh air and diseases that would be aggravated and spread by Winter conditions, are nipped in the bud by the sun and fresh air.

On the other hand, Summer heat can make you irritable and uncomfortable beyond measure, if you fail to adapt yourself to hot weather conditions. There are simple rules that will help:

Eat more vegetables and eat less meat.

Drink a quart of clean, pasteurized milk a day.

Eat plenty of fruit.

Wear clothes of light weight and color.

Bathe daily. Rest frequently and take some exercise each day out of the sun.

Get eight hours' sleep in an open, airy room.

If there is a young baby in the family, the rules are more extensive. Use only pasteurized milk for the baby. I would not give a child of mine certified milk because no amount of precaution and cleanliness can guarantee the milk against infections in the cow that the owner may know nothing about.

Keep baby in a cool place. Cover him with netting to keep the flies away. Bathe him at least once daily and dust his skin with a good talcum powder.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Have been troubled for a long time with severe headaches. Do you think they could have been caused from eye strain? I. J. D.

I would advise you to go to the Eye and Ear Infirmary, Charles street, Boston, and have your eyes thoroughly examined. I should suspect that there was some eye strain causing your trouble.

I have noises in my head and am slightly deaf. Although have had treatment, nothing has been done. Please tell me what I can do for it.

A. G. F., Dorchester.

I would recommend that you go to the Eye and Ear Infirmary on Charles street, Boston, and have your ears thoroughly examined and try to learn the cause of the trouble which you mention.

COMING EVENTS

1980—Invention of aluminum Mah Jong sets, light enough for a man to carry without the aid of a wheelbarrow when taking his set to play at a friend's house.

2010—New fish and game laws. Every animal lover who wishes to keep tame goldfish in his home must cover the globe with barbed wire, protecting the helpless creatures from cats.

1995—Revision of fire ordinances. If girls must smoke cigarettes, they should carry a cuspidor about with them instead of carelessly throwing away lighted butts.

2120—Great patriotic wave in Europe. "Rather than borrow money from the United States we will starve to death."

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Help Wanted

WANTED—By the United States, a dozen business Napoleons, salary, unlimited. Apply immediately.

Conditions in America never before were so ripe for the appearance of business Napoleons. There is room for a dozen, even twenty, of them.

* * *

A railroad Napoleon could today accomplish bigger things than the work of Harriman and Hill combined. The United States government would give him its blessing when he addressed himself to forming the score or so of huge consolidations recommended by the Transportation Act of 1920. He would find scope for achievements far transcending those even attempted in this or any other land. The nation could afford to pay him any number of millions of dollars he cared to ask.

An even larger and more vitally important task awaits an agricultural Napoleon. Without question the day is coming when agriculture in this vast continent will be conducted largely as big business. Think what a Farmer Ford would do! He would round up and cultivate land not by the hundreds or the thousands of acres, but by hundreds of thousands and even millions of acres.

He would have central headquarters in each State invaded and branches located at desirable points. He would probably make all his own farm machinery and all his own implements. He would supply half the world with horses. He would breed cows that would yield more milk and butter than the finest specimen owned by E. A. Stewart of Carnation Milk fame. He would raise pigs of record-breaking weight and sheep combining a maximum of wool and mutton value. He would export cheese by the shipload. If he took up cotton growing, he would first rout the boll-weevil and then turn his attention to improving the length and quality of the staple.

He would use hydro-electric power as freely as it is used in factories. At certain seasons he would cultivate fruits under acres and acres of glass. He would multiply his output of eggs by lighting brilliantly his poultry yards and houses by electricity. He would probably quicken the fertility of certain soils for certain purposes by means of electricity. In short, there is no limit to what an agricultural Napoleon could accomplish.

The oil industry is aching for a Napoleon who could drill the multiplicity of existing companies into line and check all the criminal waste caused by spasms of inordinate overproduction. Spasms followed by periods of scarcity and excessive prices. He could save millions of dollars by effecting scientific distribution, supplying each locality from the nearest or most logical point. In addition to reforming the whole industry at home, he would go forth and battle successfully to entrench the United States in foreign fields.

* * *

What would a Napoleon of the coal industry be worth to this country? In short order he would stop overproduction. He would so arrange storage facilities and offer such inducements for all-the-year-round buying by consumers that miners would be given, not a hundred-and-fifty days work a year, but 300 days work a year, with total pay exceeding that now received by the great majority of mineworkers. He would find profitable uses for every particle of coal, down to coal dust, perhaps by setting up at the pit mouth plants for the production of electric power to be radiated over all the surrounding territory.

* * *

America has twenty times as many automobile manufacturers as are justified by sound economics. An automotive Napoleon would wipe out the needless and costly duplication of agencies to be found today in every city and town and hamlet. He would cut down the "makes" of cars to a sensible number, and thus effect incalculable economies in production and in marketing.

* * *

The electrical industry is blessed by having giants of very notable calibre, alike in the East, the Middle-West, the South and the Far West. But here also the services of a Napoleon could be profitably utilized and to weave the entire continent into one super-power system, whereby all the potential water power of the country could be most economically harnessed and distributed from a network of reservoirs of power dotting the land, each linked up to all the others. Industry, agriculture, mining, transportation, all could be and would be benefited thereby. The use of coal on our railroads would become a thing of the past.

Would the problem of systematic and scientific reforestation be beyond the powers even of a Napoleon of Napoleons? The rapid extermination of our virgin forests and the lack of proper replanting constitute a problem of greater gravity than most citizens realize. A superman capable of handling this job would be worth the wealth of a Rockefeller.

A little thinking on your own part will bring to your mind other fields badly in need of Napoleons.

TRIBUTE PAID TO WOOD IS UNIQUE

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Unveiling of the bronze tablet to William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company at Shawsheen Village, was an unusual event in a way not noted by the usually alert news writers. It is very seldom that a tablet is unveiled while a man is still living. Who knows of another?

Wm. M. Wood

The tribute was especially effective in that regard and also because it was the gift of thousands of appreciative workers, commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of [illegible] New England industrial.

The American Woolen Company, by the way, originally incorporated in New Jersey, has through Mr. Wood, been made a distinctively Bay State concern, having been incorporated in Massachusetts. It is further interesting to note, as I told an inquiring investor recently, that American Woolen dividends are not taxable in this Commonwealth, except as to surtaxes.

Developments over the week-end in the copper metal market were all favorable.

The price of copper was yesterday advanced one-eighth cent a pound, the direct result of a rise in price in Europe. Alongside demand is good, it was stated by the trade, and domestic inquiry remains moderate. As high as 13⅝ cents has been paid alongside New York.

The American Brass Company advanced the price of sheet brass ¼ cent a pound, seamless brass tubes ¼ cent, sheet copper ¼ cent and bare copper wire ¼ cent.

In the opinion of President Paine of the Copper Range Company, the outlook is not much brighter for copper than it has been in several years. He says:

"For three years copper has been under a cloud, but there is hope now of clearer skies. A settlement of European affairs will open up an era of world-wide prosperity. Copper will benefit most. Germany always has been a big fabricator of copper and will resume its place once the reparations tangle is straightened out.

"This year consumption in this country will become greater than production and we will need a tariff to give the American producer the natural benefit of such a situation."

CERRO STARTS UP FURNACE

Cerro de Pasco Copper Corp. has, with approval of President Leguia of Peru, issued order to start up its second reverberatory furnace.

Cerro's output for six months ended June 30, 1924, was 49,934,000 pounds of copper and 7,656,000 ounces of silver. July output was 4,300,000 pounds of copper and 942,000 ounces of silver.

Starting up of second reverberatory furnace will enable Cerro to maintain its copper output at 5,000,000 pounds a month, or 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 a year.

Cerro increased its silver output materially as soon as copper output was reduced. In first half of this year Cerro produced one ounce of silver to 5¼ pounds of copper, while in July it produced one ounce of silver to 4½ pounds of copper. This ability to increase silver output at will is a great asset to Cerro, especially at these times of high silver prices.

Instalation of Cottrell treaters will recover sufficient lead and arsenic to increase Cerro's earnings at least $1,500,000 a year at present prices of lead and arsenic. It will take nine months to a year to get Cottrel treaters in operation.

With two reverbatory furnaces in operation Cerro can easily keep earnings up to current dividend requirements of $1 a share a quarter on 1,107,002 shares outstanding, even if copper prices should go below 13 cents a pound (present price is 13⅝ cents) and silver should drop back to last year's average price of 65 cents an ounce, as against present price of 69 cents.

AUTO SALES ADVANCE, WEEKLY INDEX SHOWS

STOCKS HIGHER IN NEW YORK DEALINGS

Prevalence of bullish sentiment continued to govern the trend of stock prices at the opening of today's New York market.

Most issues moved higher, although a few important stocks, including Bethlehem Steel, suffered fractional recessions.

Absorption of seasoned dividend paying railshares proceeded briskly, sending New York Central, Southern Pacific and "Big Four" to new 1924 high records, the latter jumping 4 points.

High priced shares scored the widest gains as the limited floating supply of these issues induced brisk bidding.

Popular industrials such as U. S. Steel, American Can, Studebaker and Baldwin fluctuated within restricted limits, but demand broadened for the copper stocks, several of which attained new 1924 tops as a result of higher prices for the red metal.

General Baking added 3½ points to yesterday's sharp rally of 13½ points.

Gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Pan-American, National Lead, American Water Works, Atlantic Coast Line and "Katy" preferred.

General Electric and Louisville & Nashville lost a point each on profit taking. Foreign exchanges opened easier.

Boston opened irregular: Boston Elevated 75; Am. Tel. 126; Warren Bros. 37½, off ¼; Copper R. 27, up ⅛.

CARRIERS AHEAD OF INDUSTRIAL SHARES

Railroad shares have again superseded the industrials as the centre of speculative interest. Subsidence of the brisk demand for the stocks of the carriers likely to become a part of the enlarged nickel plate system to permit more careful study of exchange ratios recently disclosed in preliminary terms of consolidation has been followed by a reawakening of interest in Western and Southwestern roads been mentioned in reports of mergers in those territories.

Rock Island, Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific and Wabash issues have been under accumulation in this connection. Reports of increased car loadings by Western carriers also have influenced the buying of these shares.

WICKWIRE TO FUND DEBTS TO BANKS

Long-expected plan of readjustment of the finances of the Wickwire Spencer Steel Corporation is contained in a letter to shareholders from the committee which has formulated the plan.

In brief the plan provides for funding the company's bank borrowings, postponing heavy retirements of funded debt to which the company is now obligated and furnishing it with $2,515,000 additional working capital.

Wickwire Spencer has been severely handicapped ever since the 1921 slump by lack of adequate working capital. The company suffered a final deficit of $4,015,000 in 1921 and of $840,000 in 1922.

In addition to this drain on working capital the indenture of its first mortgage bond issue provided for a 3 per cent. sinking fund commencing January 2, 1923, and under the lease and purchase agreement with the Spencer Wire Co. the purchaser was obligated to pay $200,000 annually on the principal of that debtp.

NEW COMPANY.

Moderate earning power shown last year was not sufficient to restore working capital to an adequate level and maintain these payments on the principal of the company's funded debt.

Under the readjustment plan a new company is to be incorporated to acquire the assets of the present company. The new company will have $12,673,000 7 per cent. mortgage bonds due 1935, to be exchanged for the present issue. These bonds will not have a lien on quick assets but will be given instead the privilege of converting into new common at $25. The bonds will carry no sinking fund until 1928, then $50,000 for two years, $100,000 for the next two years and $200,000 thereafter.

The outstanding $1,685,000 Wickwire Spencer 7½s 1932 secured by all the stock of the American Wire Fabrics Corporation, are not disturbed in the readjustment plan. Payment of the $200,000 annually called for by the lease and purchase agreement with the Spencer Wire Co. is to be deferred until Oct. 31, 1931, with interest at 6 per cent on the deferred instalments. Otherwise this agreement is not involved in the plan.

EXCHANGE PLAN.

Preferred and common shareholders are to exchange their holdings for common stock of the new company in the ratio of five shares of new common for each share of present preferred and 1-10 share of new common for each share of present common.

In addition they may subscribe to $2,515,000 new class "A" five-year 7 per cent notes and 440,125 shares new common stock. Each preferred share will carry the right to purchase $20 notes and 3½ shares new common for $20; each common share will carry the similar right to purchase $2.25 notes and 63-160 shares of new common for $2.25.

Bank creditors will exchange $3,-639,400 of the company's paper for a like amount of class "B" five-year 8 per cent. notes. The class "A" notes will be senior to the class "B" notes as respects both principal and interest.

BOSTON FIRMS LEAD.

The offering of $2,000,000 notes and 350,000 shares of stock will be underwritten by a group of individuals interested or to be interested in the company, headed by Samuel F. Pryor, chairman of the executive committee of the Remington Arms Company, and by Lee, Higginson & Co., E. H. Rollins & Sons, Spencer, Trask & Co., Parkinson & Burr and Hambleton & Co. Mr. Pryor will be chairman of the executive committee of the new company.

All the stock of the new company is to be deposited in a voting trust for six years, the trustees to be Mr. Pryor, F. W. Allen, R. B. Young and Theodore Wickwire, Sr.

Upon completion of the readjustment the company will have $14,-364,000 secured obligations, $6,164,-400 five-year notes, 955,000 shares of stock. On the basis of 1923 earnings, assuming the company paid 6 per cent. on its bank loans, Wickwire Spencer earned 1.45 times interest on its secured obligations and class "A" notes to be outstanding despite the lack of sufficient working capital and a depressed pig iron market. Relieved of onerous capital charges and with additional working capital, it will be in position to make a still better showing.

DAY'S BOND OFFERINGS ARE OVER $30,000,000

New bond offerings today totalled slightly more than $30,000,000, the largest being the $22,000,000 issue of external 3-year 6 per cent. gold debenture notes of the Industrial Bank of Japan at 99¼ and interest to yield 6.27 per cent. gold debenture bonds of the American Power & Light Company at 94½, to yield 6.35 per cent. The $75,000,000 offering of first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad is expected later in the week.

LAN BANKS LIKELY TO BE CONSOLIDATED

Wall Street expects a series of consolidations of joint stock land banks within the next few months because of the unhealthy competition reported among some of the phesent seventy institutions in which the public has invested about $394,000,000 through the purchase of bonds. To date, these banks are reported to have loaned about $419,-000,000 to farmers.

Expert Advice Free

Before you buy or sell any stocks or bonds you ought to get expert advice. Send inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, financial editor Boston American, Winthrop square, Boston, Mass.

SELECTIONS.

To R. E. A.—A fund of $15,000 divided between bonds and high-grade preferred stocks would meet with our approval, if you are not cinfined to issues that are legal for trust funds. Among the securities you have mentioned the soundest are National Biscuit preferred, American Bank Note preferred, American Car and Foundry preferred and Electric Bond and Share preferred. The common stocks should not be considered for your purpose. There is no investment superior to United States government bonds. As you seem desirous of obtaining a fair yield, we are going to suggest bonds that are selling on approximately a 6 per cent. basis. You might well make selection from the following: Nashville Railway and Light 5s, due 1958; Penn Public Service 6s, due 1947; Hudson & Manhattan first mortgage 5s, due 1957; Atlantic & Yadkin 5s, due 1949; Canada Atlantic 4s, due 1955; Aetna Explosive 6s, due 1931; Knickerbocker Ice 5s, due 1941; Utah Fuel 5s, due 1931.

INVESTMENT.

To W. O. O.—A form of investment that should make an appeal to all those warranted in employing a part of their funds in buying sound stocks is provided in some participating preferred shares. There is good reason for believing that those who accept an unsecured liability of a company in the form of preferred stock should receive additional compensation in extra distributions when the success of the organization warrants dividends on the common stock in excess of the rate paid regularly to preferred shareholders.

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing and Consolidated Gas preferred are illustrations of securities in the above mentioned class. Both are receiving dividends in excess of the regular rate. You are warranted in selecting either one of these for $1,000 of your funds. Both are attractive invesments in sound companies. The principal amount of $1,000 may properly be placed in Hudson & Manhattan first mortgage 5½s, due 1957. These securities will take care of close to the amount you have available at this time.

When your first installment of $750 is received, then would be the time to select an investment. There is nothing to be gained by determining the form of an investment to be made six months hence. Write us again in the early part of 1925 and our services will be at your disposal.

ASSOCIATED DRY GOODS.

To R. Y. G.—Despite the slowing up in business, earnings of Associated Dry Goods in first six months were only slightly behind a year ago.

So far this year every month except March has shown a gain in sales volume, and profits have been ahead in all but two months in the half-year. Business started to gain in April, and, from present indications, the system stands a good chance of making 1924 as good as 1923, when $17.85 a share was earned on 149,850 shares of common.

Showing of Lord & Taylor, the system's largest store, has been particularly good, and has made up for any falling off in some of the less important stores.

FLEISCHMANN CO.

To L. P.—Fleischmann Company declared an extra dividend of 50 cents on common, payable October 1 to stock of record September 15.

CALUMET AND CLIFF.

To E. L. K.—Coming at a time when a better feeling pervades copper metal circles, Calumet & Hecla Consolidated's move to resume development at its Cliff property is significant. The Cliff property, embracing a large acreage, lies on the Kearsarge lode north of the Calumet & Hecla properties. For some time engineers and geologists have been making surveys of the Cliff holdings and their recommendations are for immediate and intensive development work. Although the property has been opened to shallow depth and has produced copper in the past, an entirely new program is under way involving more modern development plans.

Of the 60,000 shares of Cliff Mining outstanding, Calumet & Hecla Consolidated owns 28,785 shares. The assessment just called will provide $120,000 for development work, provided the response is 100 per cent., of which Calumet & Hecla's proportion amounts to $57,570. Cliff had an excess of current assets at the end of last year of $49,516. With its new money, therefore, the property will be in ample funds to ascertain what its mineral values are.

Calumet & Hecla Consolidated continues the development of its directly-owned companies. The former Allouez is now being developed at depth; a drift is being run to connect with the Ahmeek shaft. This will provide cheaper mining and enable the company to get at the richer portions of the Allouez property, hoisting through the Ahmeek shaft. Osceola is undergoing development work, connecting up with the other properties and in general the consolidated unit is preparing for the time when the metal market will warrant increased production.

From the standpoint of treasury position, Calumet & Hecla ranks with the strongest producers, with net quick assets of over $13,500,000. The 2,005,502 shares outstanding are the only capital liability.

The company has not forced its copper on the market during recent weeks. It is in position, therefore, to benefit immediately from any advance in metal prices.

VANADIUM.

To M. T. E.—Earnings of $429,419 after depreciation and depletion for Vanadium Corporation of America in first half were considered satisfactory, as there must have been a rather severe slump in the second quarter. Indications are that Vanadium is gradually coming back, and if the improvement in business continues after the current quarter, the stock is not so far from dividend payments as generally supposed.

The company has more cash than needed in its business, evidence of which is found in the fact that in addition to $944,819 cash it had $1,-458,921 Treasury certificates. It has no bonds or bank loans, and current liabilities are only $101,000. The 373,-000 shares outstanding have a market value of approximately $8,500,-000, against which is working capital of over $5,000,000. Working capital is equal to more than $13 a share.

Vanadium Corporation of America shares after they were introduced in 1919 were one of the market sensations. From around 37½ the stock advanced to as high as 97 in 1920. In that same year it also sold at 28½. The Flannerys of Pittsburgh had made millions out of Vanadium, and traders who bought at high prices seemed to have an idea they were going to do likewise. The company has a practical monopoly of vanadium, most of which is used in manufacture of steel.

MUSCLE SHOALS.

To O. B. B.—We will repeat for your benefit, and for the benefit of all others who are likely to be attracted by such a proposition, that we regard the purchase of Muscle Shoals lots as a gamble in real estate.

UTICA GAS.

To C. A. B.—Utica Gas and Electric preferred is well supported by earnings under present operating conditions, but if you are content with a smaller return for the sake of greater security you will find it in that company's 5½ per cent. bonds, due 1949, and selling recently to yield 5½ per cent.

OPTIMISM FELT OVER LOAN TO GERMANY

International bankers are optimistic regarding chances for success of the forthcoming loan to Germany, of which it is expected that $100,-000,000 will be offered in this country on ground a 7.75 per cent. basis. So far as the condition of the bond market is concerned there need be no apprehension concerning the prompt absorption of the loan.

Whether animosities created by methods employed by Germany during the war will interfere with the flotation only actual offering of the securities will determine, but satisfactory experience with the Austrian loan would seem to promise a like reception for the German issue, especially in view of the high calibre of the banking syndicate which will sponsor it.

Significant items in Monday's news budget, significant because they have a bearing on manufacturing conditions generally, were the advances recorded in copper, lead and pig iron. Copper was advanced ⅛ cent a pound to 13⅝ cents; the biggest factor in lead production put up its price from 7½ to 7¾ cents a pound, aand pig iron quotations were advanced 50 cents to $1 a ton.

Resumption of operations at the Pittsburgh Steel Co.'s plant at Monessen, Pa., considered in conjunction with the unexpectedly small decrease in United States Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage for July, suggests that the turn may have arrived in the barometer steel industry.

Coal men say that the bituminous industry is steadily working into a stronger position; stocks of coal above ground are constantly declining and the next few weeks may bring a distinct improvement in market prices.

Keene, N. H., Bonds

Treasurer of Keene, N. H., will receive bids until Aug. 15, for purdated Sept. 1, 1924, and payable chase of $140,000 4½ per cent. bonds annually 1926 to 1935.

OBREGON DENIES PLOT IN EVANS SLAYING

New York, Aug. 12.—Mrs. Rosalie Evans, the British subject who was murdered on her ranch in Mexico, was the victim of three robbers and not of a political conspiracy, according to a statement by President Obregon of Mexico, given out by the Mexican Consul-General here, Alberto Mascarenas.

President Obregon asserts that the majority of Mexicans greatly deplore the killing of Mrs. Evans and the subsequent efforts of a political clique to give the crime the appearance of a plot by the agrarian party.

KEITH'S BILL OFFERS GOOD ENTERTAINMENT

Marie Walsh and Frank Ellis, in a sketch entitled "Our's Is a Nice House, Our's Is," entertained a crowded house at Keith's last night. Ellis is a dry-as-dust comedian, who had the men and women in the audience laughing every second he was on. Miss Walsh is a marvelous dancer.

Keith's has a bill this week that is one of the best ever offered the Boston public. Jim McWilliams, who talks himself into the affections of the audiences, is present in all his glory.

Henry Hull, Edna Hibbard and Frank MacDonald presented the clever playlet "Five Minutes from the Station." The Midgets who show with Paul Remos are extraordinary in every sense of the word.

Horace Wright and Irene Dietrich sang several songs. George MacFarlane, a splendid baritone singer, Margaret Walker, a nimble and agile dancer, and Herbert G. Lowe at the piano presented Song Fantasies. Jack Evans and Teddy Evans and Maidie DuFresne gave a good act. Max Yorke and dogs and an assistant are good also.

G. A. R. Parades Here for Perhaps Last Time

Once again Boston is standing at attention for the heroes of the G. A. R.

It is scarcely necessary to urge the people of this patriotic city to do them all honor today, as they parade our streets.

No press of affairs can efface from the people's consciousness the memory of their glorious service in the days of '61.

It is with love and reverence and pride and more than a little sadness that we watch the hosts in faded blue roll by.

In the natural course of events today's parade of the national G. A. R. must be the last Boston ever will see.

Like John Brown's soul, the years go marching on. Death is decimating their ranks.

Not many more national encampments remain. For those, there is intense competition on the part of the great cities of the land. It is too much to hope that Boston will be thus honored again.

Never is a sad word. Never is a long time. Today the men of the G. A. R. are with us. Their tattered standards are carried through our streets. Their little bronze buttons are everywhere.

Honor them today.

Colored God for Colored People

Why Not? We have a White God

Marcus Garvey, President-General of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, offers one reasonable suggestion. He says: "God tells us to worship Him in our own image. We are black, and to be in our image, God must be black."

He insists, therefore, on a black God for colored people, with black saints, and in addition demands the whole of Africa for the colored race.

Mr. Garvey's idea of adapting God to the racial color is not entirely new. Missionaries in Africa long ago showed divine personages with black faces in order to make it easier to convert the Africans. Their primitive minds could not in a hurry get used to the idea of a white-faced divinity.

Today, on the edge of the Mediterranean, in northern Africa, you might see a famous holy image, jet black, offering comfort to many dark-skinned Christian mariners. The color pleases them and doubtless does not annoy any divine being.

Similarly, good missionaries among the North American Indians, in their preaching, emphasized those parts of the Old Testament telling of the Lord's battles and victories and the great number KILLED on each occasion. They realized that Indians would be converted to a victorious FIGHTING god much more easily than to any peaceful, forgiving deity. Men WORSHIP what they RESPECT and what they consider to be fairly good imitations of themselves.

As to the blacks OWNING AFRICA, that's surely reasonable. It's their country.

Incidentally they have owned it, all except a few thousand years, for endless centuries. Even in Egypt, where the Ptolemies were merely "new rich" and the Egyptians rank intruders, the black race ruled once. Their traits are proved in the Ethiopian face, the thick lips, high cheekbones of the Sphinx. Mr. Garvey says, "When the white men were living in caves, we negroes gave them a civilization that they snatched away from us." There may be something in that. Some historians agree, in part, with Mr. Garvey.

But civilization belongs to him who has it, and knows how to use it. The Japanese seek to take it from us and improve on it. Honor to them, if they make a better success of it.

Ice Water on Trains

Railroads Should Imitate the Pullman Company

Parents are surprised when children just home from school develop typhoid fever. They wonder how they got it AT SCHOOL. Many of them do NOT get it at school. They get it on the railroad coming home from school.

Every railroad track is an open sewer. The dust that rises carries with it all the germs scattered along the track. Where ice is carelessly handled and then put in the drinking water these germs are swallowed by those that drink the water.

The Pullman Company has a system to prevent ice coming in contact with the drinking water. In modern Pullman cars the water is run through coils packed in ice. In older cars the ice and the water are kept in separate compartments.

The railroad companies get for themselves, out of the public and out of the Pullman Company, 50 per cent. of all Pullman fares.

In addition to taking this money from the Pullman Company, they might take an ice water idea from the Pullman Company and thus avoid many cases of typhoid due to careless methods of handling ice and manufacturing ice water in some of the ordinary day coaches.

Give the Devil His Due

La Follette, Ditto

Stokes, once Governor of New Jersey, says that La Follette, if elected, "would scrap the Constitution of the United States." And Mr. C. H. K. Curtis, who knows better, allows one of his writers to speak of La Follette's party as the "reds." The fact that the reds have denounced and attacked La Follette, as he has repudiated and denounced them, evidently makes no difference.

Senator Stokes suggests that La Follette would do away with free speech, free press, the right to worship God as you see fit, the rights of colored people, the right of trial by jury, etc.

Very mild radicalism seems to scare some people more than is justified by the facts.

La Follette is no "red," no Constitution scrapper. He has lived in the West and fought in Washington. If Wall Street tried to make La Follette eat out of the hand, Wall Street might get bit on the thumb. But that is not "red radicalism."

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

REAL love is the kind that settles down into that trustful "good-old-scout" feeling, which needs no explanations, reassurances, gallantry or poses to keep it alive.

Helen Rowland

A woman never can think of a "reason" for anything foolish she may do, but a man's alibis, like the dishes at a cafeteria, are always "ready-to-serve."

* * *

You can always pick out the wife of the man who is making the after-dinner speech by that resigned, abstracted expression she wears.

* * *

A man's idea of the best time to begin the day's work is always a little hazy, but when it comes to knowing the exact moment at which to stop working and keep a golf-date he has an almost perfect "time-consciousness."

* * *

Second marriages, like the second trip abroad, may lack the thrill of novelty, but you know so much better how to prepare for them that they are always a lot more comfortable and satisfying.

* * *

Why it is that when a man marries his young secretary he is admired for his courage, but when a woman marries her young secretary she is laughed at for her foolishness?

* * *

Nothing will cool a wife's love so quickly as having to serve a man a hot dinner at a different and uncertain hour every day.

At twenty a girl is as frank and transparent as the clothes she wears, but by thirty she has learned the art of veiling her thoughts and her charms in pink georgette.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

How Old is "Aged?"

Editor Boston American:

At what age does a man or woman become "aged?" Upon reading a news article in your paper recently headed "An aged man struck by an automobile," I glanced down the reading matter to see who it was and just how old he was. The age given was sixty. This experience is but a repetition of many others in reading the general run of newspapers. As a news editor, or deskman, of some twenty years' experience, I realize how conveniently short the word aged is in the writing of headlines. But why take it out on innocent victims who find their way into the news columns of the daily papers?

I have numerous relatives and friends whose mortal milestones number about threescore. But I should never think of calling them aged. Would a person fifty-nine years old be called aged? Surely one year more is not sufficient to carry them into that category.

As a lad, it was the custom to look upon people past middle life (fifty to sixty) as old, or to be put on the shelf or placed in the corner to twirl their thumbs. But in these days of activity people do not grow old, but mingle with friends and relatives of all ages and forget the limitations which birthdays bring. There is an old saying that a man is as old as he feels and a woman as old as she looks, but in these days of rejuvenating processes this tradition has been forgotten and womankind has added the privilege of perpetual youth to the many others that have come to her through equality of the sexes.

When does a man or woman become "aged?" Why not ask your readers and bring out some interesting information?

Mother of Six in Need

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a poor woman and I have six children. I find it very hard to get clothing for them, and my husband is not working steadily. If you know of any kind readers who have any clothing they do not need, I would gladly accept them with thanks, as school will open very shortly and it would be a great help to me. I have one boy and the rest are girls. I am a good needle woman and would be able to fix anything over.

MRS. A. C. 2.

Asks Home for Boy

Helping Hand Editor:

Is there some kind-hearted Protestant reader who will board my boy, nineteen months old, after September 1? I am working only part time and find it impossible to pay the money I have been paying for his board. I will be so grateful for help in this way.

MARY M.

Aged Cripple Pleads

Helping Hand Editor:

I am 72 years old and am a cripple. I cannot go out; sit in the house. My chair grows harder and harder every day. I will accept anything—clothes, books, underwear. Please be good.

MRS. D. C. S.

Things to Make Over

Helping Hand Editor:

I have some things to be made over, some men's shirts, size 15; a ladies' black suit, size 40, and some 7 AA oxfords and boots. Will deliver them if not too far away. Also have some patchwork pieces.

Many thanks. Mrs. M. B. will be glad to get the black outfit, and Mrs. J. A. Fleming's son who was recently burned out and lost everything, can make good use of the shirts. The patchwork we have asked you to send to Mrs. L. A. S. We have no request on file for the shoes and oxfords, but will let you know as soon as we hear from someone who can use them.

Needs Furniture

Helping Hand Editor:

I write you these few lines to ask if you could help me. I am the mother of three children and have just come home from the hospital after an operation and would like some furniture and bedding if any of your kind readers have any they could give me. My husband has been out of work for two months and cannot get any steady job.

MRS. J. C.

May Help Someone

Helping Hand Editor:

I have a few things which, although they may not be in very good condition, may help someone out a little. I would like to give them to someone who lives near me if possible, as there may be other things from time to time.

MRS. M. E. P.

Thank you. We have sent you the address of F. T., whose entire family is badly in need of clothing.

Home and $6 a Week

Helping Hand Editor:

Is there a poor girl who would like a good home, room and board and six dollars a week as mother's helper, in Swampscott, near the ocean; can help on clothes, too?

MRS. H. C.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Honest labor bears a lovely face.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON BEING ASLEEP

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE art of going to sleep is the art of disconnection.

Being awake is being alive to our surroundings and susceptible to them. Whenever these surroundings are of such a nature as to require our attention we cannot sleep. When we can leave our environment and become lost in vagaries, then only can we acquire sleepfulness.

Sleep is a bath of the soul which it needs every so often and without which the nerves become frayed. Probably there is no other question that interests so many people as the question of going to sleep. Those who can drop to sleep at any moment, as was said of Napoleon, are rare indeed. Most of us need conductive surroundings.

Surroundings which are conductive are those which enable us to leave them and wander off into the field of dreams.

It will be found by most people that surroundings become negligible only when they are customary, when we have become so habituated to them that they no longer require our attention.

There are some who can sleep amid the noise of the city because those noises are usual and everything takes place as expected. They cannot go to sleep apart from these noises because they have become insensible and part of their subconsciousness, and are necessary to forgetfulness.

There are others who cannot sleep except under conditions of quiet such as are found in the country or far away from bustling tram-cars or busses.

As many people will be found in the one class as in the other. The ability to go to sleep depends upon one's ability to disconnect himself from what is actually taking place around him.

Many have been awakened by the sudden stopping of the clock. The cause is that they have accustomed themselves to the ticking of the timepiece, and its silence, being unusual, recalls their attention to it. Thus it will be found that they can sleep with the clock ticking by them, but cannot sleep without it.

Thus it will be seen that the sudden cessation of noise acts as quickly to call us awake as the sudden beginning of noise and it all depends on that to which we have accustomed ourselves.

Whatever else sleep is it seems to be the vanishing of the mind into the distance and one cannot murge into dreamland unless the present has retreated and he is enabled thus to let it go.

The question of going to sleep is an important one. Those in the full tide of health will probably require no assistance, while those afflicted with nervousness need every hint that they can get.

A sound sleep leaves us refreshed and equipped for the day, but a sleepless night is wearing to the nerves.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON EARTH'S LIFE STORY

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Could you give us the names of all the geological periods, as they come; how they are connected with the glacial periods, and the names of the people in existence here in each period? I follow with much interest your articles dealing with primitive man and science and religion.

—F. D. B., Oakland."

MAN is not so old an inhabitant of the earth as you seem to think. Animals which ancient legends said were created only a "day" or two before Adam, and were then led to him to be named, really had existed tens of millions of years before the first man baby cried out his astonishment at being born.

The Primates, the order to which man belongs, came very late, only beginning their development in their higher forms after the last period, the Quarternary, had opened.

The Tertiary, the period began about 5,000,000 years ago, and that only within two or three hundred thousand years, including the close of the Tertiary and the Quaternary up to date, have the Primates, which include, the anthropoid apes, been in existence.

The fishes began the latter part of the Ordovician period, became more and more abundant in the Silurian, and attained their maximum in the Devonian, after which they relatively receded in importance until recent times. The Batrachians began in the lower Carboniferous, or Coal, period, developed rapidly and as rapidly fell off at the end of the upper Carboniferous.

Then came the reptiles, starting in the upper Carboniferous, and attaining their zenith in the Jurassic or Cretaceous. The birds, derived from reptiles, had their start in the Jurassic and early Cretaceous.

The mammals set forth inconspicuously at the end of the Triassic and had a relatively sudden and enormous development during the Tertiary. Then, as already mentioned, came the Primates, the highest branch of all, taking the last place in order of development and of time.

Try to imagine a dotted line coming up from the beginning of the first period, the Cambrian, about 30,000,000 years ago, and connecting all of the various orders as they successively develop. This is intended to indicate the chain of relationship, or of evolution, binding all of the forms of terrestial life in organic whole. Life in its humbler forms, such as that of mollusks etc. began even before the Cambrian. In truth the Cambrian was rich in nearly all orders of animal life below the vetebrates.

Even before the Cambrian the earlier orders had been developed, and they must have existed for ten, or perhaps hundreds, of millions of years, but their remains have been destroyed in the rocks that are older than the Cambrian by violent convulsions and partial remeltings of the earth's crust.

Now, the glacial period that is ordinarily referred to, and that is associated with the earliest remains of man, is all included in the Quaternary. It is called the Pleistocene, and is divided, as far as primitive man is concerned, into the Paleolithic, or Old Stone age, and the Neolithic, or New Stone age.

Taking them in their apparent order, the "names of the peoples," found to have dwelt in Europe in these "stone ages" are the Chellian, Acheulian, Mousterian, Aurignacian, Solutrian, Magdalenean, Azilian, Tardenoisian, Campignian and Robenhausian races. The latest in the series bring us up to the dawn of our own age.

Once-Overs

INTEREST IN YOUR WORK WILL MAKE YOU FORGET THE WEATHER.

Do you allow yourself to be controlled by the weather?

During the cold, rainy, backward Spring were you cross, irritable, complaining, perhaps morose?

Why let the weather rob you of the job of living?

Of course you cannot get so much enjoyment outside when it rains, but why let it sour your soul and incidentally reflect in all those with whom you come in contact?

Weather, like everything else, evens up before the year is out; and sunshine is bound to come, as well as entrancing nights of moonlight.

You do not have to gain or spend money to get much out of life.

Just open up your heart and let the best that nature affords come into it; even though it be rain, there is something joyous about rain.

Other localities have their rainy season and then their dry season.

It is sort of disappointing to think you are in one climate and find it a climate you want to avoid, but—

If you are sufficiently interested in your work and can forget yourself you will be happy in spite of weather conditions.
